Committee Seeks Green Acres Ruling On Tennis Enclosure

At a Township Committee hearing, November 9, concerning the Princeton Tennis Program proposal to enclose three tennis courts in Community Park South, creating a kind of "sporthall," Attorney R. William Potter reminded Committee that funds from the Green Acres Grant program were used to acquire Community Park lands.

He pointed out that, "State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Green Acres rules prohibit the construction of structures like the sporthall," and cautioned the Committee that any changes in the park must be reviewed by the state.

It now appears that Green Acres funding was used for the purchase of land in Community Park North, rather than Community Park South. The two park parcels are distinct tracts and are divided by Route 206, but are listed in state records as one park.

Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer has confirmed that the land now known as Community Park South was deeded to the municipality in 1961, by an entity known as the Princeton Community Parks Foundation.

"Once a municipality receives Green Acres funding," Mr. Schmierer said, "it is prohibited from using any public parklands in a way inconsistent with Green Acres purposes."

Because the Township used Green Acres funds to acquire Community Park North, the lawyer continued, it must still obtain clarification from the state on the proposed sporthall construction.

The restrictions are somewhat less stringent for lands not purchased with Green Acres funds, Mr. Schmierer said. He added that he had requested an opinion from Green Acres legal counsel Jean Danlon concerning the proposed sporthall.

In his own opinion, Mr. Schmierer said, the sporthall would not be a violation of Green Acres regulations, because it is not a permanent structure. "The sides would be rolled up three quarters of the year," he pointed out.

Pulte Revised Plan Raises Concerns

Concerns about whether Pulte Home Corporation's planned development on Cherry Valley Road will meet the needs of both older and younger residents were voiced at last Thursday night's Regional Planning Board meeting.

Pulte's original plan was to construct 77 townhouses and 38 single-family residences on the 65-acre property, which is across from Griggs Farm. The revised plan, discussed at the meeting, reduces the number of townhouses to 71, for a total of 109 units.

A total of 39 of the tract's 65 acres will be preserved as open space. Three acres will be developed as a park with a basketball court, soccer field, and hard surface play. Passive recreation will be allocated 19.6 acres, and the remaining 9.4 acres will remain as private open space. Last month, Township Committee amended the R-T zone ordinance requiring Pulte Homes to build the park.

The property is located in the R-T zone, with an overlay zone for senior housing. The purpose of the R-T zone is to provide a transitional area between the high density of Griggs Farm on the east and the Princeton Ridge development and other lower density residential areas to the south and west.

Pulte Home Attorney Thomas Hall said a highly interactive process has been going on since the original application came before the Planning Board as a concept plan in May of last year. "This has shaped the project, and I'd like to get the Board's input on the final design."

Griggs Farm resident Niki Schlesinger pointed out that the development still had no playground. "This means that children will come to the overused playground at Griggs Farm, and this could cause serious problems, with young children crossing the road between the developments."

Also, several objections to the soccer field were raised during the meeting. Michael Fedun, representing the Griggs Farm Condominium

Alternate Bypass Design Is Unveiled by State DOT

"I don't know if the design is better or worse, but it's the first time I went to a meeting and everyone was there," said Borough Mayor Marvin Reed about a meeting last Thursday at which the State DOT unveiled an alternate design for the Millstone Bypass.

This was the second meeting to discuss the controversial bypass called by State Assemblyman Reed Gusciora, D. Princeton, But, unlike the first, this one was attended by representatives of the DOT. Also in attendance were most of the other players, including officials from Princeton, West Windsor, area chambers of commerce, Princeton University, and the Delaware & Raritan Canal Commission.

Last week it was revealed that the State DEP has placed the elm trees on Washington Road on the state list of historic sites. This act, widely supported by Princeton, allows the DEP to have a say in any plans affecting these trees, five of which are slated for removal in the current Millstone Bypass configuration.

Sporthall

Enclosure of the three courts nearest Route 206 was proposed last April by the Princeton Tennis Program (PTP), as a $1 million "gift" to Princeton that would facilitate year-round play.

The structure would consist of an aluminum framework covered by plastic fabric, with a translucent white top and sides made of green fabric. The structure would be 42 feet high at its peak, or two feet higher than the tennis lights now in place. It would be 12 feet high along the sides.

There are no indoor courts in the immediate vicinity and construction of the sporthall is supported by members of the Recreation Board and by the Recreation Department, for which PTP manages a tennis instruction program.

Neighbors Say, "No"

It is, however, vigorously opposed by neighborhood residents who contend that the "sporthall" would blight their view of Mountain Lakes Ridge and encroach on the park's open space. They have formed a group called the Community Park Neighborhood Alliance and engaged Mr. Potter to represent them.

Director of "Clueless" To Speak at Princeton

Amy Heckerling, director of Fast Times at Ridgemont High and writer and director of Clueless will present a lecture on Thursday, November 19, at 4:30 p.m. in the James M. Stewart '32 Theater, 185 Nassau Street.

Her talk is being presented by Princeton University's Visual Arts Program in association with The Film Studies Committee and the Women's Studies Committee.

"As far as I am concerned, the regulations are very clear," Mr. Potter said in a telephone interview. The attorney — who specializes in environmental and energy law — pointed out in a letter to Township Committee, dated November 11, that state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) regulations "prohibit any diversions of public parkland and open space within any municipality which has received Green Acres funds."

Even if the "diversion" took place only on parkland within the municipality which was not acquired through Green Acres, it would be a violation, Mr. Patterson wrote.

A Shell Game

"There might be no net increase in open space if municipalities were allowed to accept Green Acres funds for one public area, while developing another," he pointed out to TOWN TOPICS. "If you could play this kind of shell game, the Green Acres program would have no meaning."

"Upon receipt of Green Acres money for parkland purchase and improvement, the Township's entire inventory of public parkland and open space is protected from diversion," Mr. Potter emphasized to Township Committee.

The attorney advised members to "abandon any plans to erect the proposed 'Tennis Pavilion' within this or any other Princeton Township or Borough parkland" and to cancel the continuation of a public hearing on the matter, which is scheduled for November 30.

"He's presenting one side of an issue, based on his interpretation," commented Deputy Mayor Steven Frakt. "We will wait for a legal opinion from our own attorney. Unless there is legal concurrence that we must abandon the proposal, we will have to resolve this issue on the basis of what makes overall sense for the Township."

Mr. Schmierer said he expected to receive an opinion from the Green Acres attorney well before the meeting of November 30.

First Round of Zoning Approvals Won by New University Building

Having been given the nod by the Borough Zoning Board of Adjustment, Princeton University is now free to move forward with its design of a new academic building on William Street, adjacent to the Computer Science Building.

Last Wednesday night, November 10, The Borough Zoning Board of Adjustment approved a use variance regarding the maximum allowable FAR. The next step is for the University to return to the Zoning Board with a full site plan application and a request for bulk variance relief.

The proposed building, to be called The Friend Center for Engineering Education, would be constructed on an existing parking lot to the west of the Computer Science Building.

The exterior of the first floor of the building will be a combination of glass and limestone, to match the existing stone limestone base of the Computer Science Building.

Clear insulating glass would be used for the upper two stories, which would be set back from the one-story section fronting on William Street. Sun-shading behind the two-story glass section will be through set-in-place interior horizontal wood louvers — a device that evokes the idea of fixed venetian blinds sandwiched between two panes of glass.

TOPICS Of the Town

Classrooms & More

The three-story structure will provide classrooms, seminar spaces, a large auditorium, a multimedia center, and an engineering library. It would overlook a new campus green to the south. On the north of the building, along William Street, would be a combination of greenery and flowering shrubs.

The building would contain 69,300 square feet within the E4 zoning district. The district regulation limits the maximum FAR to 55,200 square feet for all structures within the given block area. This new building will bring the total floor area to 103,074 square feet.

"The Is the right building for the space," said Architect Henry N. Cobb, principal in Pei Cobb Freed & Partners (formerly I.M. Pei & Partners). Among Mr. Cobb's recent completed works are the Anderson Graduate School of Management at the University of California, Los Angeles; headquarters for the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Washington, D.C.; and United States courthouse, Boston.

Mediating Element

Mr. Cobb said the one-story limestone building — referred to as a "wall" throughout the hearing — was a mediating element to the residential side of William Street, and that the building provides the required space in the form that is best for the University and the neighborhood.

The architect said the new structure wants to be a good neighbor in the residential district, and that he will continue to interact with residents on William Street on the type of landscaping to be installed.

"This could appear as a rather massive wall," said Zoning Board member Ann McGoldrick. "Might the neighbors on William Street perceive this as a barrier?

Mr. Cobb responded that the one-story building would not create a blank wall, and that its entryway on William Street would be quite large. "It would be 12 feet high, to the scale of the wall at Princeton University Press [located across Charlton Street]. The last thing we want is a wall that says exclusion."

Board member Marilyn Lynch said she would feel much better if the campus green were on the William

YMCA Anniversay To Be Celebrated At Awards Dinner

Mayor Marvin Reed of Princeton Borough and Mayor Phyllis Marchand of Princeton Township have proclaimed December 2 as "Princeton Family YMCA Day" in recognition of the organization's 90 years of service to the Princeton community.

Both mayors will be on hand to present proclamations in honor of the group at the YMCA's 90th anniversary benefit dinner, December 2, from 6:30 to 9:30, at Merrill Lynch.

Three individuals who represent a long tradition of service to the YMCA and to the community will be honored at the dinner. The Princeton Family YMCA will present its first Ralph S. Mason Distinguished Service Award to Alexander "Whip" K. Buck, David S. Dodge and Millard M. Riggs, Jr.

The award is named to honor the late Ralph Mason, who exemplified the YMCA mission of enriching the spirit, mind and body and improving the quality of life. Street side of the building rather than on the side facing the campus.

Princeton University Vice President Robert Durkee explained that the new building had to relate to the Computer Science Building already there, and that moving it over would conflict with the major pedestrian walk.

"It is better if the courtyard is separated from the street," said Jon Hilfater, director of the University's Office of Physical Planning. "Most houses have smaller front yards and larger back yards because that's the way streets work."

William Street

Anthony Vasselli, who lives at 24 Charlton Street, on the corner of William, suggested that Board members drive down William Street and look at the Computer Science Building. He objected to comparisons of the proposed Friend Center with Princeton University Press, saying that the Press's wall is 80 feet, compared with the proposed building's 300 feet.

"The Wall"

Dr. Vasselli urged that the building be reversed, with the green facing William, and said the reason there were so few William Street residents at the hearing was because the street was owned by the University.

"The wall is within the zoning requirements," Mr. Cobb reminded everyone. "It is the volume of the building behind the wall that requires variances."

Of the 135 cars that are currently parked on the proposed site of the Friend Center, 95 will be assigned to the University's garage. Others will be shifted to a nearby lot.

The Zoning Board placed several conditions on its approval. It asked that greater attention be paid to landscaping and sought additional information on the window-shutters system and on parking plans.

FINALLY FINISHED: Construction barriers at the intersection of Princeton-Kingston Road and Dodds Lane signal that the reconstruction of Dodds Lane is finished at last — after three years of residents' complaints about pavement that was cracked, marked with potholes, and filled with water during much of the year.

Long-Delayed Road And Bridge Projects Completed in Twp.

The entire 4,900-foot length of Dodd's Lane, from Route 27 to Shadybrook Lane, has at last been reconstructed, according to Township Engineer Robert Kiser. Paving was completed on Monday, November 16.

The $857,000 job included replacing a culvert at Harry's Brook Branch 1, and building a new underground drainage system with sump pump connections into storm drains.

Last year, Township Committee rejected bids for the Dodd's Lane repair, over the bitter protest of residents, who claimed that repairs had been promised for the past two years.

At the time, Mr. Kiser explained that extensive repairs were imperative and that none of the bids was suitable. The municipality re-bid the project early this year, and Marvec Construction, Verona, won the contract.

Anther project in the planning stages for many months — reconstruction of Ridgeview Road — was also recently finished. Ridgeview, from Cherry Hill Road to a point west of the Transco pipeline, has now been resurfaced, according to Mr. Kiser, for a total of $380,000.

The contractor on that job — Intercounty of Hackettstown — is the same company that stepped in to finish work on two construction projects the first contractor proved incapable of completing.

In September, the Township officially terminated a contract with M&M Concrete, Old Bridge, which had missed a number of deadlines on the $938,000 Brookstone/Fairway Drive project. A few days later, it also terminated a $499,000 contract with M & M for improvements to Jefferson Road.

Intercounty Paving, which has now taken over both jobs, bid on them the first time around. In both cases, Intercounty quoted prices that were higher than M&M's.

"The Township is only obligated to pay the amount budgeted for M&M," according to Mr. Kiser. "The bonding company will pay the rest."

The contractor is pledged to complete construction on both the Jefferson Road and the Brookstone/Fairway Drive projects by November 30 — working through the weekends, if necessary, to finish before winter sets in.

Drumthwacket, the Governor's Mansion, is not usually open for tours on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, but this year the doors will be open between noon and 2, on November 25.

Visitors may view an exhibition of New Jersey porcelain, which includes examples of Presidential china made by Lenox. Residents are encouraged to bring their Thanksgiving visitors to tour the house and gardens and to do some early holiday shopping in the gift shop.

Parking will be available; and reservations are not oecessary.

Brook, adjacent to Mercer Road — will also soon become reality.

On July 1, Township and county officials broke ground for the bridge, for which members of the Stony Brook Area Civic Association had lobbied for many years. It was also part of several Princeton Community Master Plans.

Completion, anticipated by November, won't be quite on schedule, according to Mr. Kiser, but work should be finished by December 9. "The steel spans to complete the bridge will be delivered on November 24," he explained.

The bridge will provide a missing link in a plan of greenway paths along the Stony Brook, connecting Mountain Lakes Park, Community Park, and John Witherspoon Woods with Princeton Battlefield, the Institute Lands and the Lake Carnegie towpath.

Pedestrians and cyclists must now cross a very narrow stone-arch traffic bridge (circa 1808) on Mercer Road to get across the brook, creating a safety hazard for themselves and others.

In May, Township Committee awarded a $395,120 contract for construction of the bridge, to the 78 Construction Corporation, the low bidder in a field of 16.

There is no taxpayer cost. Instead, an allotment of $130,500 from the state Transportation Trust Fund has been provided to the Township; Calton Homes/Washington Oaks will provide $103,000 under terms of an arrangement with the Township; and Mercer County will contribute the remaining funds — up to a total of $300,000.

Two-Day Suspension Given Varsity Liquors

Borough Council last Tuesday night, November 10, ordered a two-day suspension for Varsity Liquors, Nassau Street, for selling to an under-age person.

The penalty imposed was actually three days, December 27, 28, and 29, but Council agreed to hold the third day, the 29th, in abeyance.

The penalty was for sale on April 15, 1998, of alcoholic beverages to an 18-year-old Princeton University undergraduate.

The minor and the individual who sold him the liquor have already been convicted in Borough municipal court.

Tuesday night's lengthy disciplinary hearing before Borough Council was a separate proceeding brought by the Borough Police.

Earlier this year, Varsity had been penalized one day for sale of an alcoholic beverage to a person under age 21. The April 15 offense could have brought a license suspension of up to 30 days.

The store may be given further penalties in a hearing that will be held in the near future relating to a sale to an under-age person that took place May 25, 1998.

Veterans' Day Is Remembered In Ceremony at War Memorial

Last Wednesday, on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, people gathered throughout the United States to honor the men and women who gave their lives in their nation's wars. Princeton participated in this national moment of remembering with its own ceremony at the War Memorial at the foot of Nassau Street. In this photo, Princeton resident Frank Tylus, a member of American Legion Post 76, is shown addressing the approximately 30 people who attended the Veterans' Day ceremony.

It had been raining in the morning, but the sun came out well in advance of the ceremony. In addition to Mr. Tylus, speakers included Borough Mayor Marvin Reed, Township Mayor Phyllis Marchand, State Assemblyman Reed Gusciora, and the Rev. Robert Moore. Several members of Borough Council and Township Committee were also in attendance.

Two prayers were offered by the Rev. Moore, who heads the Princeton-based Peace Action Education Fund. He also said that no one wanted peace more than those men and women who knew the horrors of war.

For many years, the Veterans' Day ceremony was planned by Post 76 of the American Legion. Now, however, the Spirit of Princeton Committee has offered to take it over. Several members of the Spirit of Princeton, which also organizes the Memorial Day Parade and July 4 fireworks, were at the ceremony.

Ray Wadsworth, of the Spirit of Princeton, said he was disappointed that the bugler who was supposed to play "Taps" was ill and could not participate. He promised there would definitely be a bugler next year, and that efforts would also be made to bring in a military Honor Guard to fire a rifle salute.

Sixth Hearing On Harris Road Use Postponed to Dec. 1

A Township Zoning Board hearing on the Princeton Medical Center's application to use Harris Road residences for office functions, scheduled for November 11, never took place. At the last minute, it was postponed until December 1.

Hospital attorney Christopher Tarr appeared at the scheduled time to announce that Philip Caton, a planner engaged by the Medical Center, had encountered an unavoidable conflict and could not attend.

It was imperative that Mr. Caton, a planner for Readington Township (Hunterdon County), be present at a Readington municipal planning board meeting, Mr. Tarr explained.

Neighborhood residents who oppose the hospital's application have engaged their own planner, who was scheduled to testify on November 11.

Her presentation will take place on December 1, after which the Medical Center will deliver final arguments on its application for a variance to continue using residences as offices.

Neighbors claim the use of residences as offices degrades the neighborhood and compromises property values.

Medical Center representatives concede that using residences for hospital offices is a violation of the Township zoning ordinance. They argue, however, that a hospital has an "inherently beneficial" effect on the neighborhood and does not have to satisfy the same criteria for a use variance as a commercial enterprise.

The hearing will reconvene in the large meeting room of the Township municipal building, 369 Witherspoon Street, at 8 p.m., on December 1. It will be the sixth hearing on the hospital application.

Princeton Groups Are Pitching In To Aid Nicaraguan Storm Victims

Rain dropped by Hurricane Mitch has caused more than 10,000 deaths throughout Central America. The damage in lives, infrastructures, and harvests is incalculable. PeaceWorks, in conjunction with the Central Jersey/Masaya Friendship Cities Project and Princeton/Granada Sister City Project, is organizing two cargo container aid shipments to Nicaragua.

Area churches, civic organizations, and concerned individuals can help by contributing goods and making monetary donations. Because the relief organizations involved are tax-exempt, donors can get receipts for their tax-deductible donations.

As it has for the other 32 aid shipments they have sent to Nicaragua since 1987, PeaceWorks will send the aid to Masaya Without Frontiers (MASINFA), a professional and accountable organization which is serving as a regional disaster relief organization in Nicaragua.

Following is a list of what is most urgently needed:

• Household items: Shoes and sandals, shoes, blankets, soap, brooms, plastic containers, bedding, candles, batteries, cooking utensils, flashlights, water filters (agencies are already overwhelmed with donated clothing);

• Food: Rice (and other grains such as corn meal), dried beans, powdered milk, oil, coffee, sugar, cooking oil, crackers, canned goods (no glass containers);

• Tools: Carpentry tools, nails, hammers, shovels, gardening implements;

• Medicines: Over-the-counter medications such as for coughs, colds, and flu, vitamins (including pre-natal vitamins), first aid supplies, anti-diarrhea, antibiotics (oral, ointment, in suspension), anti-mycotics, anti-parasitics, anti-inflammatories, anti-malarials, antipyretics, anti-asthmatics;

• Educational supplies: Pens, pencils, notebooks, paper, scissors, etc.;

• Vegetable seeds: All varieties (many communities have no source of new seeds);

• Sports equipment: Baseballs and bats, gloves, etc. (to help sustain spirits);

• Bicycles: In good condition only.

Boxes should be packed tightly, preferably with one type of aid material in each box, and clearly labeled.

Volunteers are also needed to help transport goods to Plainfield, where arrangements will be made to fly the items to Nicaragua.

The deadline for donations is Friday, November 20. For information on dropping off donations, having donations picked up, or to volunteer to transport goods, call the Salty Dog at 252-1815 or 924-0455. Make checks payable to CAR/Sister City.

TRENTON ROUNDUP

Honest Charity

Governor Christine Whitman signed a bill last week that prohibits charitable organizations from misleading contributors.

Under the law, organizations cannot tell contributors their money will be used for charitable purposes, then use it for legal or administrative costs. Violators will be fined $7,500 for a first offense and $15,000 for subsequent offenses.

The governor also signed a bill that exempts volunteer-run charity shops from paying the state sales tax on donated goods.

Rush-Hour Crackdown

A number of area police departments have received $6,300 grants from the state Division of Highway Traffic Safety to help them crack down on aggressive rush-hour drivers.

The municipalities of Lawrence, West Windsor, Hopewell Township, Plainsboro, Hamilton, Bordentown, and Trenton are expected to match the grants. The program will be administered jointly by the division and the state police.

Drivers can call state police at a toll-free number — 1-888-723-7623 — to report anyone who is driving in an offensive or dangerous manner during rush hour. The dispatcher will notify local police to intercept the driver. Cell phone users may dial No. 77.

Educational Expediency

As early as next year, some of the people allowed to teach in New Jersey schools could walk into the classroom with no teaching experience at all. The state Department of Education announced last month that it is easing requirements for foreign language and performing arts teachers, in an attempt to deal with an impending shortage of instructors in those subjects.

No student teaching would be required; courses in education theory would also be waived. Districts would also be allowed to use part-time instructors with a background in the required subject area, but with no teaching certificates.

Representatives of the New Jersey Education Association oppose the move, arguing that it will lower the quality of teaching in the state.

Fair Share Legislation

The New Jersey School Boards Association has announced that it will seek legislation requiring the state to provide "impact aid" to school districts, such as Princeton, that must educate children living in tax-exempt housing owned by colleges or other educational institutions.

Members of Borough Council have already drafted legislation that attacks the issue in a slightly different manner. It was introduced in the state Assembly by Reed Gusciora (D.-Princeton Borough).

The legislation would require tax-exempt institutions to pay the costs of educating students who live in their residences and attend the Princeton Regional Schools.

Tobacco Settlement

New Jersey will accept a $7.5 billion share of a national lawsuit settlement with the tobacco industry that bans outdoor cigarette advertising and channels millions into the state for anti-smoking programs and health care, according to state officials.

The agreement is the result of a lawsuit brought by 39 states, including New Jersey, against the tobacco industry, to recover Medicaid funds spent treating sick smokers. Terms were announced on November 16.

Payments are scheduled to begin in the year 2000, and to be spread out over 25 years. A majority of the states must agree to their settlements for the funds to be disbursed.

PRS Ad Hoc Group To Seek Long-Term Solution to Inequity

Princeton Regional School administrators will meet with principals from all district schools on Thursday, November 19, to discuss the formation of a district-wide ad hoc committee for long-range planning.

One of the first tasks of the committee — to be composed of parents and other community representatives, as well as school personnel — will be to consider a lasting solution to racial and ethnic imbalance in the schools.

At the board of education meeting on November 10, PRS Interim Superintendent Dan Swirsky noted that the characteristics of the district "are such that the issue of compliance is transitory."

He was referring to the near-impossibility of maintaining an enrollment in each elementary school that exactly mirrors the racial and ethnic make-up of the student population district-wide.

According to state desegregation guidelines, if more than a 3 percent deviation from the district-wide percentages occurs in any school, the district is in violation of the guidelines.

Recently-released fall enrollment survey figures illustrate the problem: The two PRS schools that were in compliance with state guidelines in the 1997-98 academic year — Littlebrook and Riverside — now report slight deviations from the standard.

Johnson Park School, which had "too many" white students last year, no longer does; and the number of "national origin" children, including Latino students, has dropped at Community Park, which is only 1.4 percent out of compliance, rather than the 2.5 percent reported last year.

Ethnic and racial balance is always in a state of flux in Princeton, Dr. Swirsky noted, due to an influx of families from many parts of the world, who come to the Seminary, the University, and the Institute for Advanced Study.

Because the schools are small, even slight variations in enrollment can cause a violation of the guidelines.

One of the tasks of the ad hoc committee will be to devise ways in which the district can be made "resilient" to the vicissitudes that are bound to occur from year to year, Dr. Swirsky said. "We don't want to turn topsy-turvy every time there's a change."

The district must submit a long-range plan for correcting racial and ethnic inequities to the state Department of Education by February 23, 1999; and must implement the plan by next September.

In order to create a durable plan that answers other inequities, as well, it will be necessary to consider not only enrollment, but also facilities, staffing, curriculum/program issues, and budget, Dr. Swirsky pointed out.

"Our success as a school district during the next millennium will be determined by our understanding of long-range planning," the superintendent said.

Once the ad hoc committee has been formed, community forums will also be convened, where residents can ask questions and offer suggestions. District personnel expect to start holding the forums next month.

10-Year Initiative

As part of the long-range planning discussion, Dr. Swirsky announced a "10-year initiative." He distributed a conceptual diagram, indicating that some changes would be required at the high school, in either program or facility.

The elementary schools are on the timeline through the decade, but action does not seem to be contemplated at the middle school until academic year 2002-2003.

"The high school must be the primary initiative," the superintendent explained, "because the district possesses insufficient resources to apply to all areas simultaneously." Maintenance has been deferred so long districtwide that it cannot be undertaken all at once, he added.

Board member Charlotte Bialek objected that the middle school should not be excluded from a ten-year plan — even briefly; and she admonished the administration to "include the middle school and its administration in these efforts. You must have an idea of what you are going to do, or you wouldn't present this timeline," she challenged.

Dr. Swirsky assured her that no plan had yet been developed. "We must derive consensus," he said.

Bucky Hayes, head of the board's Finance Committee, said he agreed that the high school had urgent facilities and program needs. He said if "actual construction" were being contemplated, he would concur with the plan to defer action on the middle school. "If it is aspects of the educational program that we are talking about, I would not agree."

Therese Flaherty commented that she could not support an administration that focuses on building facilities to the exclusion of educational priorities.

At that point, high school principal John Kazmark rose to assert that it is impossible to provide education for all students in the high school's current building. He promised that at the board meeting of November 24, he would provide a clear outline of the changes he deemed necessary.

"We must embark on facilities planning along with program evaluation," insisted Mr. Hayes. "We can't be sequential; we must be simultaneous."

PHS Expansion Imperative

"Our ability to deliver programs is not there without facility expansion," insisted Mr. Kazmark.

Ms. Flaherty declared that attention to the quality of education in the elementary schools must be balanced with the emphasis on solving problems at the high school.

Borough board member Walter Frank questioned whether the ad hoc committee would be tempted to focus only on short-term solutions — such as meeting the immediate needs of PHS students or quickly creating ethnic/racial balance — at the expense of longer-term planning. He suggested that two committees might better address all the issues.

The ad hoc committee will start with a discussion of enrollment, K-12, promised Dr. Swirsky. He also promised that at every single board meeting there will be an opportunity for public discussion of long-range planning questions raised by the committee and the forums.

"We've got to start speaking in specifics," insisted Ms. Flaherty. Board President Jack Marrero, too, commented that the board often exhibited a lack of coherent philosophy.

"We've got to return to an understanding of why we are here," he said. "It is to educate our children."

Sandy Maxwell

Everyone enjoys Sandy Maxwell's smooth piano playing, sharp wit and delicious fudge! This was originally his mother's recipe and is suited to anyone who has: 1. a taste for chocolate and marshmallow... 2. a strong right arm and... 3. the determination to rise above all anti-sweet propaganda...

Helen's 'Happy Holiday' Fudge

2 sq. unsweetened chocolate
A hunk of butter the size of an egg
1 cup milk
2 cups sugar
⅛ tsp salt
1 tblsp Vanilla
Marshmallow bits
Teeny red candy dots (optional)

Dump the first five ingredients in a saucepan and heat over a moderate flame. Stir now and then while they are melting together. To test for readiness, drip a drop of the mixture into a cup of cold water. When the drop takes the shape of a ball in the water, take the pan off the stove and add one tablespoon of vanilla. And here's where your forearm stars... Beat. Then beat some more. Keep beating until it's almost stiff enough to be unable to pour and at that last minute pour it while it is still just pour-able into a buttered dinner plate.

Now, take the marshmallow bits and spot them liberally across the top of the fudge; adds a lovely extra flavor. Then, not so much for flavor as for holiday color, put tiny bits of red candy in the center of each white dot.

Burglars Caught With Stolen Items, According to Police

Melveyne Scudder, age 22, of Clay Street, and 19-year old Jehan Mistri of South Brunswick, were arrested on Prospect Avenue at 8:23 p.m. November 13 and charged with burglarizing various nearby University eating clubs.

The accused, who police say were acting suspiciously, were initially detained by Princeton University public safety personnel. Minutes later, Borough police officer Edward Sullivan arrived and arrested the pair, who possessed more than $2,000 worth of clothing and property belonging to various students and clubs, authorities said.

Both were charged with burglary and theft. Mistri was released on 10 percent of $12,000 bail. Scudder was temporarily detained on $250 bail resulting from a previous West Windsor warrant. He was released on November 14. Court dates for Mistri and Scudder were not available at press time.

Car Crimes

A University student's 1991 Honda Accord was stolen from a parking lot on the western side of the New Graduate College between 10:30 p.m. November 16 and 2:30 a.m. November 17. The car was valued at $10,000.

Somebody tried to pry open the front driver and front passenger doors of a 1992 Honda that was parked in University Lot No. 19 between 6 p.m. November 8 and 9 p.m. November 10. Lot 19 is located off Springdale Road, near the lot where the crime described in the above paragraph took place.

The perpetrator did not enter the vehicle, but did bend three-inch gaps between the door frames and doors, which will cost an estimated $800 to fix, police said. Earlier this month, Lot 19 was the site of a car theft and two car break-ins.

Somebody popped the driver's side door lock and tampered with the ignition of a 1991 Honda Accord parked on Griggs Drive, in an apparent attempt to steal the vehicle, sometime between 2:30 p.m. November 10 and 4:30 p.m. November 13, police said.

The victim is a Griggs Drive resident. He reported nothing missing from his car, which was damaged in the incident.

DWI, With Knives

A 28-year-old Trenton man was stopped for driving a car with a suspended registration on John Street Monday morning. He was arrested at 1:40 a.m., when the investigating officer discovered the accused was drunk, possessed knives and had a false driver's license, police said.

Reynaldo Robinson was charged with DWI, possession of weapons and hindering apprehension. He was later released with a summons. His court date was not available.

Underage Drinking

Two underage students were arrested after police found them highly intoxicated in Palmer Square on November 13 at 9:35 p.m., authorities said. Christopher Isaacs; age 18 of Bethlehem, Pa.; and a 17-year-old male from North Carolina were charged with underage drinking. Isaacs was later released with a summons. The juvenile was later released to a guardian.

Jane Biondi, a 20-year-old student from Los Angeles, was arrested on Prospect Avenue at 12:38 p.m. November 13, when a Borough officer found rum and coke in the plastic cup she was carrying, police said.

Biondi was charged with possesion of alcohol by a minor and released with a December 14 court date.

A 16-year-old Trenton girl was arrested and charged with juvenile delinquency after a Borough officer spotted her with a partially consumed bottle of cognac on Nassau Street at 9:50 p.m. November 11, police said. The accused was later released to family.

Crafters' Marketplace Plans Show, Sale To Benefit YWCA

In the same year the Pearl Bates Scholarship Fund was founded at the YWCA — 1963 — the YW held its first annual craft show and sale, calling it the International Festival. The scholarship fund and craft sale became linked when organizers of the show pledged to contribute their profits to the Bates Fund.

In 1973, the name of the show officially became the Craftwomen's Marketplace. In 1993, after several men asked if they might be allowed to particlpate or attend, the name was changed to the Crafters' Marketplace.

The annual event will be held Saturday and Sunday, November 21 and 22 at John Witherspoon Middle School, Walnut Lane, its home for the past eight years. The juried show will feature 136 exhibitors, a far cry from the 15 or so who particlpated in 1963.

This first event netted $500 for the Pearl Bates Scholarship Fund, a fund which enables disadvantaged adults and children in the community to particlpate in YWCA programs and services. Included are after-school programs, camp, gymnastics, and English as a Second Language.

The show now contributes some $50,000 a year for the scholarship fund. Camille Baldick, a member of the steering committee, explained that money is raised by the rental of exhibition space, admission fees and the sale of food, which is provided by the YWCA Newcomers' Club.

There are 37 members of the committee planning the event, and about 250 are expected to turn out this weekend to help with the show.

Asked when the planning begins for the next marketplace, Ms. Baldick said, "right after the show ends."

Car in Borough Garage Catches Fire Nov. 11

A car parked in a commercial garage at 2 Nassau Street burst into flames around 11 p.m. November 11.

A Bank Street couple, whose backyard borders the garage, smelled smoke and notified authorities. Firefighters extinguished the blaze shortly after 11, police said.

Jean Crider noticed an odor emanating from the garage and brought it to the attention of her husband Chip.

"My wife's eagle nose discovered it," Mr. Crider said. "She smelled something but didn't know what it was. I identified the smell as smoke. Then she looked out back and saw smoke. She called 911 and I went down to see what was going on."

Mr. Crider entered the garage and discovered the burning vehicle. The flames were low when he showed up but they accelerated, he explained. "I left when the fire trucks arrived," he said.

Latin Academy Invites Prospective Students

Princeton Latin Academy, a junior preparatory school for grades kindergaten through eight will hold an open house on Sunday, November 22, from 2-4. Prospective students and their families are invited.

The Academy offers a classical/liberal arts education. The curriculum emphasizes syntax and grammar, the pillars upon which the reading and writing skills are built.

Latin and Spanish are introduced in kindergarten, and Greek, in the third grade. This triad of languages is intended to serve as a building block for the development of vocabulary and spelling in English. Mathematics, science, history, and music form a quadrivium of content areas.

The Academy's focus is on the child as student. It provides a calm ambiance where the child is nurtured to meet the intellectual challenge of life and learns to work industriously and happily.

Princeton Latin Academy also offers an extensive after-school enrichment program with courses in Japanese, Italian, theology, Shakespeare, chess, theater, string ensemble, SSAT preparation and a homework/study session.

Princeton Latin Academy is located at Rambling Pines on Route 518 (just east of Route 31) in Hopewell. For further information, call 924-2206.

Mayor of Los Angeles Returns to Alma Mater

The mayor of Los Angeles will return to his alma mater, Monday, November 23 for "A Conversation with Richard Riordan," at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School at noon in Dodds Auditorium, Robertson Hall.

Mayor Riordan, who earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy from Princeton in 1952, was first sworn in on July 1, 1993, and was re-elected to a second term, April 8, 1997.

Under his leadership, the Los Angeles Police Department has increased from 7,400 officers to 9,400 officers; and police and fire department budgets have been increased significantly. The Mayor's Alliance for a Safer Los Angeles, a private-sector effort, has raised $16 million to computerize the LAPD, an initiative intended to free officers from time-consuming paperwork and allow them to spend more time on the beat.

In addition to his efforts in public safety, the mayor created L.A.'s Business Team, whose mission is to attract and retain local businesses.

He established the Minority Business Opportunity Committee, designed to help minority-owned companies do business in Los Angeles. MBOC has identified $2.6 billion in minority contract awards, and assisted more than 10,000 minority- and female-owned businesses.

Millstone Bypass

Mayor Reed said that he and others at the meeting are holding comment on the alternate proposal until traffic studies can be completed. This should take three to four weeks.

The alternate plan would permit right turns in and out of Washington Road at Route 1. Traffic would not be able to cross Route 1 at Washington Road. The current plan, which is opposed by Princeton but supported by Princeton University and West Windsor, would have created a cul de sac on Washington Road at Route 1.

In addition, the alternate plan eliminates a proposed road segment running along the Delaware & Raritan Canal that would have extended from Harrison Street to Washington Road. Part of the plan is to create intersection improvements at the Hartley and Harrison intersection. This intersection would be widened and a left turn lane installed.

"This probably is the basis of the ultimate design, but it may need to be refined," said Borough Councilman David Goldfarb, who was at last week's meeting.

The current design would begin the bypass at the railroad bridge in West Windsor and move it north into the Sarnoff Research Center lands. The 2.3-mile roadway would then cross Route 1 as an overpass between Fisher Place and Harrison Street, continue toward the Delaware & Raritan Canal, and then connect at that point both with Washington Road and Harrison Street.

Both the Harrison Street and Washington Road Route 1 exits would be closed, leaving only Alexander Road and the new bypass as exits serving Princeton and West Windsor.

A Revitalized Princeton Young Achievers Seeks Volunteers for Teaching Assignments

Every day after school, Monday through Thursday, more than 50 children, in kindergarten through seventh grade, invade the Clay Street Learning Center on Witherspoon Street for help with their homework, as well as their reading and writing skills. They are participants in the Princeton Young Achievers (PYA) program.

As they clamor for attention, it is all that the handful of volunteers can do to maintain order and — at the same time — respond to the children's needs.

Late on a recent afternoon, several volunteers — college students and one senior citizen — were helping about 17 children in grades three to seven with homework in the upstairs study room. Downstairs, the younger children gathered for help with reading and language skills.

Despite the fact that 35 PYA volunteers — students and community residents — recently went through a formal training session at Princeton University to learn techniques for teaching reading skills to the younger children, many more volunteers are needed.

"We would like to provide tutorials twice weekly for children in grades K-2," explained Joyce Robinson, one of the certified teachers in charge of the center's PYA activities. (Paige Hinton-Mason is the other teacher.) "So far, we only have enough volunteers to provide one 40-minute tutorial for each child on a weekly basis."

Anyone who would like to learn more about PYA, or who would like to volunteer in one of the PYA centers is invited to call 924-5601.

The goal is to "key in on children's needs for help with basic skills before they become acute," Ms. Robinson added.

"We know that what really works is to sit down with young children, one on one," commented Karen Borak-Lutkus, PYA coordinator of volunteers. Ms. Borak-Lutkus, a former Head Start supervisor, emphasized that children who receive personalized attention at a young age invariably do better in school than those who do not.

Created in 1993

Clay Street is one of three learning centers run by PYA, an organization created in 1993, to provide homework and after-school support to parents and students, especially in minority neighborhoods. The other centers are at Princeton Community Village and Littlebrook School. The centers serve more than 100 children in all; and there is a waiting list.

At first, PYA was supported by state desegregation grant monies; partial funding of the program was assumed by the school board in April 1994. The board last year contributed $130,000, while the PYA Advisory Board committed itself to raising an additional $100,000.

Since the death in November 1995 of Shirley Paris, the first PYA coordinator, the board has been hard pressed to raise its share of operating expenses from year to year.

A $60,000 grant from the J. Seward Johnson Foundation was cut by more than half last year; and Regional School Board members expressed reservations about continuing to pour money into PYA, without a re-evaluation of the program's objectives and its effectiveness.

When rumors began circulating that the school board might not continue to fund the program, a group of concerned PYA board members and community residents met to discuss the future.

Responsibility for All Children

Some people felt that there should be a continuing partnership with the school board, because PYA needs a strong financial basis; and the schools should continue to bear responsibility for the learning of all children," commented Peter Paris, current PYA Board president, who is the widower of the PYA founder. Others advocated independence from the board.

In May, management consultant Barbara Blumental was brought into the discussions. She now serves as the PYA board's vice president.

Young Achievers

"It is very important to raise a significant amount of money — not just one year at a time," she declared, in a recent interview. "That way, regardless of how much money the schools contribute, PYA will not be dependent on them."

"Many of the PYA issues were management issues," Ms. Blumenthal commented. "The PYA board needed to create roles, create tasks, and create committees to address various problems." Studies of similar programs in other locations have indicated that partnership with the school district works best, she added.

The board was reorganized; a full-time PYA coordinator, Letitia Taboena-Bogatz, was hired; the importance of well-trained volunteers was recognized; and volunteer recruitment was stepped up.

"We want the centers not only to provide help with homework," explained Ms. Taboena-Bogatz. "We want to close the gaps in the children's previous education. We will still help with homework, but we want to change the focus. Eventually, we hope to provide a tutor for each child in grades K-5.

PYA also applied for and received a $50,000 America Reads Challenge grant to train the volunteers.

Happy Problems

With management techniques and an educational approach in place, the 1998-99 school year started well for PYA. "Our problems now are happy ones," commented Ms. Blumenthal.

"The situation has changed radically," according to Regional Schools board member Ricardo Bruce, liaison to PYA. "Now certified teachers are running the centers; the volunteers are trained; and the number of support staff has increased."

All PYA staff members, including the teachers who oversee the activities at each site, are employees of the Princeton Regional Schools. The current PRS budget still includes a contribution of $130,000 to the PYA program.

The hope, however, is that eventually PYA will raise a greater portion of its own operating funds so the PRS contribution can be supplemental. The PYA Board of Trustees recently incorporated as a nonprofit corporation for the purpose of fundraising.

"In incorporating itself and re-organizing with leaders of knowledge and experience, the PYA board has become a functioning operation," commented PRS Assistant Superintendent Robert Ginsberg. "Both the new president and vice president are superb officers."

Founder's Philosophy

A professor of social ethics at Princeton Theological Seminary, Dr. Paris reflects his late wife's philosophy and brings an educator's sensitivity to the office of president.

"It was Shirley's idea to initiate the program with leftover monies from the desegregation grant," Dr. Paris recalled. "She felt that Princeton was such a premier place for education, yet so many were not faring well — and it was clear that a group of people in low income areas were doing poorly."

Ms. Paris, who taught at Riverside School before founding PYA, held a doctorate in early childhood education. "Rather than seeing poor performance as something innate," Dr. Paris commented, "she took it as a challenge to the school system."

After Ms. Paris' death, the program floundered through a number of different coordinators. "Without a person in charge, PYA was bound to decline," commented Dr. Paris, "although parental interest remained high, as did interest among residents [of the communities where the centers were located]."

"I am impressed with the amount of energy people have recently put into revitalizing the program," he declared. "It is doing wonderful things for the community."

Feeding of Deer Should Be Restricted As It Impacts So Negatively on Neighbors

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In Township Committee's November 10 discussion of an ordinance to forbid feeding of deer, the point was raised by several speakers that such an ordinance would be intrusive, in that it would deny residents the right to do as they wish on their own property. Indeed so, it would.

But now think for a few moments. What about ordinances forbidding the playing of loud music after 10 p.m., or burning leaves and brush on one's own property? These are equally intrusive. So why do we have them? It is because doing whatever one pleases, on one's own property, can adversely affect other people beyond the property line.

Now suppose I feed deer, not just the occasional deer that steals from my birdbeeder, but in a big way. I dump out bags of corn and also put up a salt lick, which really attracts them. Soon I have a herd of regulars coming for the freebies. How many? When Patrolman Potts conducted a helicopter count of Township deer in 1984, he tallied small groups here and there plus about 100 on one property where heavy deer-feeding was done.

Did this affect neighbors? Sure! Deer mowed down everything they could eat within a half mile, ran in front of cars on The Great Road (I hit one there), and dropped off hundreds of gravid female deer ticks to lay their eggs. Most of us know that these ticks (Ixodes scapularis) carry Lyme disease, but they can also infect us with ehrlichiosis, human babesiosis, and granulocytic ehrlichiosis. Now think of how deer feeding could affect your neighbors.

Good luck to Township Committee's probably-soon-forthcoming resolution discouraging deer feeding, and good luck to Mark Johnson (our animal control officer) in jawboning residents to observe it. But we may need more.

It's Unfortunate That Borough Avoided Public Airing of Discrimination Charges

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Princeton Borough Council, while denying any wrongdoing, agreed to an out of court settlement in the race discrimination lawsuit filed by former civil rights director Ovie Lattimore. The total amount of the financial settlement Mr. Lattimore will receive is being withheld from the public. The details of his lawsuit, which would have been revealed in open court, will remain shielded from public scrutiny.

Mr. Lattimore will receive $15,000 of Borough taxpayers' money and an undisclosed amount from the insurance companies of both the Borough and Princeton Township. A further $60,000 of taxpayers' money will be utilized to pay Borough legal expenses in the matter. The Township's legal expenses will be paid by its insurer.

Withholding the amount the insurers will pay Mr. Lattimore from the citizens whose property taxes pay the insurance premiums protects officials from public scrutiny. But let's face reality — insurance companies are not charitable institutions. The amount the insurers are paying Mr. Lattimore reflects to some degree the validity of his claim. Litigation is expensive and insurance companies would rather avoid court; however they don't just give money away to someone filing a lawsuit without any merit.

It is unfortunate that the Borough chose to avoid a public airing of the race discrimination charges. It could have been a learning experience for all concerned. Princeton residents are entitled to know if their officials practice discrimination in any form. It sure looked like discrimination when these same officials recently proposed raiding the living quarters of Hispanics in the middle of the night to count them in their beds and to dump those considered excess in a neighboring municipality welfare motel.

Officials elected or appointed to serve the people must be held accountable and judged by the facts. Blanket denials of wrongdoing or discrimination are no longer sufficient. When public officials place personal interests above those of the citizenry they serve, it's time for them to go back and re-read the textbook from Democracy 101.

Hometown Halloween Parade Is Now One of Princeton's Nicest Traditions

To the Editor of Town Topics:

What a wonderful Hometown Halloween Parade we had the night before Halloween! The Arts Council deserves hearty congratulations for organizing so many groups and individuals to make it happen. Community events like this make Princeton a culturally exciting place to live and work.

The people who contributed to the parade mirror the wide community participation in the event itself. Lori Shelton at the Nassau Inn and Teri McIntire from Palmer Square Management and their staff created the refreshments and activities and permission for the use of the Green. Jennifer Landis helped with the event among distributing and collating flyers and posters.

Penelope Edwards-Carter from the Borough of Princeton assisted us with the parade permit. The Princeton Packet, The Times, TOWN TOPICS and US 1 promoted the event. Henry Tamasi arranged for Mercer Engine Company #3's fire truck to follow the parade and entertain young visitors. Lt. Charles Duvall and members of the Princeton Borough Police Department provided crowd and traffic control.

The Princeton University Band, led by Kenneth Lee, played before, during, and after the parade, making it magical for everyone participating. Mayor Marvin Reed and Mayor Phyllis Marchand led the parade. Maria Evans and Kathleen Preziosi carried the Arts Council's banner. Jill Carpe at the Salty Dog donated the festive balloons. Arnold Bromwell (AKA The Balloonman) made sensational balloon designs. And thanks to all at the Arts Council who helped make this wonderful tradition a grand success.

The Hometown Halloween Parade has become one of Princeton's nicest traditions! Thank you all!

Don't Let the Opportunity Slip By To Build a New and Efficient Library

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a letter sent to the Mayor and Council of Princeton Borough and to David Newton of Palmer Square.

One of the most important things in life is timing. If you all let this opportunity for our town to have a new, efficient, state-of-the-art library slip by, we may never have another chance.

The new location of the library will also permit the logical extension of business on Witherspoon Street, to the benefit of the town. It may also solve part of our parking problems.

We hope that all sides at the bargaining table will strive to make this plan work. All parties may have to "give up" something — probably of value. But that is how things get agreed upon. Look at the broad picture and see how all parties will gain in the future.

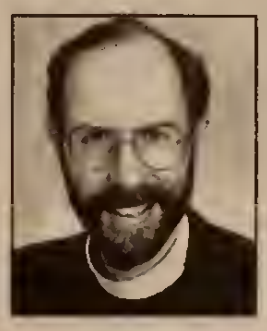
Advice for daily living

Family Advice Column:

GIVING THANKS

By the Rev. Peter K. Stimpson



The Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

QUESTION: Does prayer ever work? I'm tired of asking and never getting anything.

ANSWER: Never getting anything? No offense, but your comment brings to mind the child at Christmas, who, upon surveying a new doll carriage for which her parents saved for months, exclaims: "Oh, I wanted the blue one!"

Prayer is a two-way street. So, consider balancing your prayers of petition with thanksgiving for the multitude of blessings that you seem to be taking for granted, such as:

1. Our Senses: How wonderful to see a sunset, hear a symphony, smell and taste a turkey dinner, or feel the warmth of a roaring fire.
2. Our Mind: Our ability to think enables us to go to school, get a job, talk with a friend, watch TV, read a book, and even travel to lands our wallets will not quite reach.
3. Our Heart: The gift of love offers us a smile and a hug from a true blue friend, and someone who will not only understand what we say, but also give us a warm, empathic, and caring response.
4. Our Spouse: Someone who cries with you when you are down, laughs with you when you are up, encouraging you to think of your strengths when you are overwhelmed by your weaknesses, promising to be there forever — Wow, what a gift.
5. Our Perents: No matter how you may bemoan your deprived upbringing, the truth is that most of us had parents who held us when we sobbed over a skinned knee, put our artwork on the refrigerator, sat by our bed until we fell asleep, and worked hard to give us advantages which they themselves never had.
6. Our Children: There is no greater use of our creativity than in the gift of self to a child. Your stamp is on your child, and all he or she touches in life bears your mark. And the unconditional love that our children so willingly give us in return is priceless.
7. Our Job: Without a job, there would be no money for food, clothing, and shelter. But, your job is more than a necessary evil; it is how we express who we are. Instead of seeing yourself condemned to 8 hours in the salt mines, realize the importance of your role in society. All it takes is a garbage strike to have a whole new appreciation for a sanitation worker.
8. Our Faith: Even with all our blessings on earth, our life and happiness are limited. Faith enables us to leap to a new and limitless vision of what life is really all about, God offering us the gift of eternal life, which, while hard to comprehend, certainly deserves another WOW and a simple, but heartfelt, expression of THANKSGIVING.

Three New Restaurants in Town Offer Variety of Dining Delights

Why just settle for one restaurant when you can have three? It wasn't exactly planned that way, but Harriette and Steve Willis are indeed the owners of three new restaurants in Princeton — Harriettes, Zanzibar, and Fork in the Road.

"We always felt Princeton needed more restaurants," says Harriette, with a smile.

A former teacher and mother of four, she grew up in Bucks County and Princeton.

IT'S NEW To Us

Both she and her husband, an investment banker, wanted to take on a new challenge, and events were set in motion when they were able to acquire the former Quilty's restaurant with its liquor license.

That restaurant, at 18 Witherspoon Street, has been transformed into Harriettes, named for the owner.

"My mom is Harriett (without the last 'e'), and one of my daughters is also Harriette," she explains. "My husband decided he wanted the restaurant to have the name. Also, my mom, Harriett Brainard, a long-time Princeton resident, is known to a lot of people in town because of her interior design business, and it's nice to have the continuity of the name."

The Willises were happy with Harriettes, but were interested in acquiring additional space. As it happened, the Nassau Street locations of The Emerald Coffee Company and Carver's, adjacent restaurants which had closed, became available.

Exotic Locale

"We thought these were a good location at 235 Nassau Street," points out Harriette. "It would give us more space to offer additional and varied service in a great setting, and we were able to transfer the liquor license to our new restaurant, Zanzibar, at the site of The Emerald Coffee Company."

Zanzibar, with its two levels, opened in October, and is named for that exotic locale, a place the Willises have always wanted to visit. The atmosphere is intriguing, and everything has been chosen with great care.

"The decor is really special," says Harriette. "I tried to evoke the feeling of Zanzibar. I used all the warm, spice colors — browns, and golds and reds — and I picked up pieces all over for furnishings and accessories.

"Also, one of my big things is bathrooms!" she laughs. "I wanted them to be very appealing, with the same attractive feeling of the restaurant."

The Willises' third restaurant, Fork in the Road, is more informal, basically a take-out operation, which Harriette describes as a work in progress.

"We expect it to evolve into a take-out business with a variety of specialties, including delivery service. The name has special meaning for us, too. I had given my husband a plaque, saying 'If you come to a fork in the road, take it.' We are both that way. We like to try something new, have an adventure."

High Quality

They also enjoy good food, and that is certainly on the menu at their restaurants. High quality ingredients emphasizing flavor and freshness are the key. And in the two months that Harriettes has been open and the one month for Zanzibar, customers have been lining up to sample the cuisine.

"We have been really overwhelmed with the response," says Harriette. "People are coming every night, not just weekends, and we already have lots of regulars.

"Harriettes, which seats 52, serves French Provencal cuisine with a modern twist. We don't use a lot of heavy sauces. The quality and flavor of our food is very appealing. Alex Cormier is our chef, and he is a magician in the kitchen. He likes to use all different flavors, and they all enhance each other."

Harriettes' manager, Donna Painter, is impressed with the "simplicity of the food, and the chef's spontaneous method of cooking. He is so skillful."

"One of his specialties is foie gras," continues Harriette, "and lobster is very popular, as is calves liver. People love it, and they also love his fish. It's absolutely the best. All different kinds are available, and all very popular."

The menu changes frequently, she adds, so there is always something new to sample.

Freshest Ingredients

The food at Zanzibar is contemporary American, and it, too, meets the highest standards of quality, taste, and presentation. With its upper and lower levels, the restaurant can seat 72 customers.

"Jaime Montes de Oca is our chef at Zanzibar," says Harriette, "and he was formerly chef at the Algonquin Hotel and restaurants in New York. He uses the freshest ingredients, and adds spices to enhance flavor."

Scallops, sea bass, lamb, duet of beef, chicken, and vegetarian dishes are specialties at Zanzibar, as are the super desserts (also available at Harriettes). Favorites include creme brulée and homemade ice cream by Andre, with such unusual flavors as cinnamon fig, among others.

Almond Financier tart, with fresh berries and banana, served warm, is the dessert at Harriettes, and Chef Cormier will oversee desserts at all the restaurants.

Variety of Artwork and Picture Frames Featured at Hopewell Frame Shop

Abby Frantz, owner of the Hopewell Frame Shop is delighted with her location at 24 West Broad Street in Hopewell.

"I've been here a year, and I love it," she says enthusiastically. "It's a wonderful Victorian house, built somewhere between 1877 and 1890. I really wanted this house. I used to see it from my former location in Hopewell House Square, where I had been since 1979. I needed more space, and I also thought this house would be more aesthetically pleasing."

Not only has the new location given her an expanded work area and more space to display frame samples and artwork, it has also brought more business.

"I didn't realize the change of location would make such a difference," she observes. "There is a lot more business, and there is better visibility. I think people are attracted by the look of the house."

They are also attracted by Mrs. Frantz' reputation as an expert framer, and by the handsome display of artwork.

"It really is a frame shop and an art gallery," she says. "Framing is still a larger part of the operation, but the sale of art is catching up. I feature the lithographs of James Redding of Newtown. He does watercolors of local scenes here and in Bucks County.

Real Love

"I am also showing more oil paintings," she continues, "and I am very proud of my collection of Princeton University items. I have a big selection of different University scenes, and also lots of antique prints of horses, dogs, and maps of New Jersey."

Framing is her real love, however, and Mrs. Frantz revels in the challenge of framing everything from the unusual and exotic to the traditional and familiar. State-of-the-art methods, including those to insure preservation and conservation of the art, are all available.

"I say if it doesn't have a pulse, it can be framed," she laughs. "Anything that has significance for anyone can be framed. I've done collections of things, sets of keys, kids' art, baseball pennants, items from people's childhood, baby clothes and shoes, lace doilies, lots of diplomas and certificates — it goes on and on. I am currently framing an Aboriginal necklace with wedding beads.

"One of the first and most unusual items I framed was a dog collar," continues Mrs. Frantz. "The dog had died, and the owner wanted the collar framed with the dog's tags. Of course, it had special meaning, and it turned out to be very successful."

Numerous Styles

The choice of frames is almost endless, with moldings such as wood, metal, lacquer, and driftwood or barn siding all available. Mrs. Frantz says wood is the most popular, and of course, there are many kinds, and numerous styles.

"Ornate frames are in demand right now," she reports, "and you can use an ornate look even for small frames. When you frame a piece of art, you can apply an ornate frame on a simple piece, and a simple frame on more ornate art. It creates an interesting look.

"We also use a lot of gold and silver-finished wood frames now, and in addition, we do a lot of rustic work. People often have weekend or beach houses, and they like to have things framed in barn siding or driftwood."

Mrs. Frantz says that she especially enjoys the creativity offered by matting. As with the moldings, there are many choices, and such possibilities as paper, ultra suede, burlap, linen, silk, and felt- and metallic-types are all available.

"Matting is very creative," she explains, "and it can make a piece look so different. You can use any fabric under the sun. Silk is very popular right now, and also by adding a fillet — a gold stripe — on the lip of the frame or mat, you can create a very attractive look."

Judgement-Free

Helping customers select the most desirable frame for their art is Mrs. Frantz' goal, and when people have ideas of their own, she is always willing to listen.

"I learn from my customers," she reports. "They'll say, 'let's try this,' for example, and it can work. Also, I look upon this as a judgement-free zone. I do give people guidance and the benefit of my expertise, of course. But as my grandmother liked to say, 'there's no accounting for taste, said the old lady, as she kissed the cow!'"

Mrs. Frantz also frames mirrors, and will supply beveled glass. In addition, there is a wide selection of stock and ready-made frames in all sizes. Wood, brass, and metal with a Victorian motif are favored now.

Framing covers an enormous price range, depending on many variables. Typically, a 5 by 7 photograph with a stock frame and no mat can be under $30. The simplest of custom frames without a mat is in the $35 range, and with a mat $45. Ready-made frames start at $15.

Mrs. Frantz is also offering selected seasonal items for the holidays, including stonecast Santas and blown glass angel tree ornaments.

"I love what I do!" she smiles. "I look forward to coming here every day, and everything — whatever anyone brings in to be framed — is important. I enjoy dealing with the public, and I think that a small private-owned business like this makes a difference. When you come here, you get personal service, my talent, and my care and interest in getting it done just as you want it. And the work never leaves the premises. It's done right here.

"There's that moment when you give the customer the work, and you want them to love it. When they do, it's wonderful. Most of all, this is like my house, and I feel every customer who comes in is a guest in my home."

Hopewell Frame Shop is open Tuesday through Friday 10 to 5, Saturday 9 to 3. 466-0817.

—Jean Stratton

FRAMEWORK: "Framing typically takes two weeks. This time of year, it can be two to four. I try to accommodate everyone, but with the holidays coming up, it's best to call soon if you want things for Christmas." Abby Frantz, owner of the Hopewell Frame Shop, enjoys helping clients with their framing needs.

THEATER REVIEW

Theatre Intime's Production of Moliere's "Tartuffe" Features Comedy, Romance, Treachery and Sanctimonious Hypocrisy

Hypocrisy is never out of fashion, and neither is Moliere, the 17th century French master of satire and lampooner of all human excesses. In a current Theatre Intime production that is both traditional and boldly experimental, Tortuffe, Moliere's most popular comedy, proves to be funny, fresh and timely after more than 300 years.

A first glimpse at the set reveals both the high production values throughout this show and the essential conflicts that will drive this very funny, dark and sharply satirical play.

Adriel Mesznik's set design of Monsieur Orgon's stylish 1664 Parisian living room is a fascinating combination of shiny, elegant, symmetrical surfaces and rough-hewn realities underneath.

There is the marble black and white checkered floor with stairs upstage center, a large ottoman sofa dominating center stage, beautiful green striped wallpaper and a fashionable mirror, shiny golden picture frames and sconces on the walls. But the frames are empty; one wall spins around to provide a hiding place for spying; to the sides and above the gleaming walls is revealed the plaster that lies beneath in its deconstructed form; and above all are two crosses ominously backlit, one surrounded by shards of broken glass. As the play continues the mirror reveals more than just gleam and glitter.

Hypocrisy and Deceit

The world of Tortuffe, of Moliere, of Louis XIV and his court at Versailles, is a world of shimmering surfaces, often covering squalor or emptiness. In this world of great aristocratic and religious power and hypocrisy, appearances are deceiving, and beneath the dazzling façades is indeed a society in a state of deconstruction.

The play presents a single day in the life of Orgon (Todd Barry), his family and their pious visitor Tartuffe (Dan Cryer). The title character's influence on the family is powerfully evident long before his first appearance onstage, as Tartuffe's sanctimonious behavior has completely enthralled Orgon and his mother (Samara Abrams-Primack).

The other, less gullible members of the family, however—Orgon's wife Elmire (Suzanne Houston), their son Damis (Tommy Dewey) and daughter Mariane (Karron Graves), Elmire's brother Cleante (Adam Friedman) and their feisty, outspoken maid Dorine (Mary Bonner Baker) do not hesitate to express their suspicions of Tartuffe's ostentatious religiosity.

Hot Conflicts

Conflicts rage hot and humorous, with occasional darker and more serious overtones, as Orgon attempts to bring his family into line. All the characters are, in one manner or another, "Tartuffified" before the play ends. The thoroughly deluded Orgon signs over his house, his possessions and his daughter's hand in marriage to Tartuffe, who, driven by a lust even more powerful than his greed, is, in the meantime, raising a vigorous campaign to seduce Orgon's wife.

Twists and turns in the plot proliferate before a deus ex machino, in the form of an Officer of the Court straight from the king, suddenly arrives to reward the virtuous, punish the wicked (at least the most wicked) and bring an intentionally implausible happy ending for (almost) all.

The play, especially in the early exposition scenes, makes significant listening demands on its audience. The translation is a modern one, by the poet Richard Wilbur, but it is entirely in rhymed couplets, an attempt to represent faithfully the flavor of the original French. Though rhymed couplets in English, despite Mr. Wilbur's poetic skills, are bound to sound less natural than they do in French, and even at times relentlessly contrived, the formality, orderliness and artificiality of this verse style serve this production well; they create yet another glittery surface that belies the chaotic, troubled truth beneath.

Theatre Intime's Tartuffe will be playing for just three more performances, November 19-21, at 8, in The Hamilton-Murray Theater on the Princeton University campus. Call 258-4950 for reservations nnd further information.

Director Marlo Hunter, a Princeton University senior, has carefully rehearsed her talented, mostly undergraduate ensemble and brought together all production elements with imagination, energy, intelligence and painstaking attention to detail. The action flows swiftly and smoothly, with high levels of commitment and polish visible in every moment and every facet of the show.

Mr. Barry handles both the language and the age stretch with skill in presenting a vigorous Orgon, who is both funny and frightening in his obsessions. Mr. Cryer's Tartuffe is another scary figure, displaying a bone-chilling intensity of passion in pursuit of religion, sex and material wealth.

Two Witty Women

Their primary adversaries, however, are even more powerfully armed with intelligence, spirit and determination. Ms. Baker's Dorine is delightfully full of life, common sense and disgust for Tartuffe, while Ms. Houston's clever Elmire is more than a match for her husband and his lecherous cohort. As Moliere's roisonneur character (the author's mouthpiece and voice of reason), Cleante is a less interesting figure than these two witty women, but Mr. Friedman presents a thoroughly clear, sympathetic and strong performance.

JUSTICE AT LAST: The Officer of the Court (Chris Monsour), on the left, arrives just in time to save the day and apprehend the scheming hypocrite Tartuffe (Dan Cryer) in Theatre Intime's polished production of Moliere's Tartuffe, running for just three more performances, November 19-21.

Ben Beckley as Valere and Ms. Graves as Mariane are convincing and effective as the frustrated young lovers, while Mr. Dewey presents a credibly fiery and physical Damis, who is bent on defending his mother's honor and attacking the fraudulent Tartuffe.

Ms. Abrams-Primack is a little too strident in a tough character stretch as Orgon's mother, but Robert Cross as Tartuffe's lackey, Chris Monsour as the king's officer and Aliza Fogelson as the silent, sleepy maid all lend strong support.

Colorful Costumes

Costumes, managed by Mark Applegate, are colorful, stylish, expressive and appropriately 17th century, with ruffled collars and cuffs for the men, low-cut gowns for the women and a somber Puritan black for Tartuffe. Lighting, designed by Jossie Diaz, and sound by Paul Mattal also contribute richly and, for the most part, seamlessly despite occasional excess, to the tone and spirit of the play.

In this story of deceit and treachery, of gullible victims who refuse to hear or see or listen, of hypocrites pretending to be something they are not, the artful make-up design by Kathy Johnson and Bronwen Gilbert also makes its integral contribution. Colorful, intricate designs on these characters' faces reflect the sins that lie within. —Donald Gilpin

A Recreation Of Civil War Concert Due at Westminster

Westminster Conservatory of Music will recreate a Civil War-era concert Sunday, November 29, at 3:30 p.m. in Bristol Chapel on the campus of Westminster Choir College.

Entitled "An 1860's Music Soiree," the concert will feature a gala performance of classical, operatic and popular songs of that time. The program will include music by L.M. Gottschalk, William Mason, Harry Sanderson, "Blind Tom" Bethune and others, as well as some Italian operatic repertoire that was enjoyed by audiences during that era.

This performance is produced by Conservatory piano faculty member Michael Jacobsen, who also stars in the role of pianist Harry Sanderson, a colorful pupil of the great L.M. Gottschalk. Mr. Jacobsen will be joined on stage by his wife, soprano Danielle Sinclair, who will portray the legendary "Swedish Nightingale,' Jenny Lind.

Also appearing will be violinist/conductor Theodore Thomas. Adding to the concert's ambience will be a host of reenactors and living historians from the New Jersey Civil War History Association, all costumed in the period of the 1860's.

For portions of this program, Mr. Jacobsen will use a completely restored and reconditioned 1865 rosewood Steinway Piano, a recent donation to the New Jersey Civil War Association. Prior to the performance, this instrument will be on display with an exhibit detailing the history of Steinway during the Civil War.

Following the performance, audience members are invited to stay and share a reception with the performers and the members of the New Jersey Civil War Association.

Tickets are $6 adults, $4 students/senior citizens. For tickets and information call 921-7104.

The Princeton Triangle Club Reverts to a Fall Schedule

Up through the 1970's, Princeton University's Triangle Club had always presented its new show in the fall of the year. This was followed a month or so later by a tour during Christmas break.

But the turbulent decades of the sixties and seventies changed this pattern. One show in particular, Call a Spade a Shovel, proved very controversial. After this, the alumni associations, which sponsor the performances and receptions during the tour, insisted on seeing the show before it went out.

"This was during the generation of Hair on Broadway, and there was a clash of tastes," said Thos Paine, '75, chairman of the board of trustees of Triangle Club and a Fairway Drive resident.

"Triangle is not in the business of doing offensive material," he continued. "So since the alumni associations wanted to look at the show before its tour, it was moved from fall to spring."

For the past several decades, the annual Triangle show was produced in the spring, revived for Reunions, and then sent out on tour during the Christmas break. But this led to a grumble at the undergraduate level, because by waiting a whole summer to tour, the seniors graduated and were lost. Said Mr. Paine, "The seniors lost their own show."

Finally, this year, given far less controversial times and the fact that the pre-seventies performance and tour schedule works out better for everyone, the trustees decided to bring back the fall Triangle production.

This year's show, 101 Damnations (A Humorous Look at Sin and Vice), will be at McCarter Theatre for three performances, on Friday, November 20 at 8, Saturday, November 21 at 8, and Sunday, November 22 at 2.

On December 17, Triangle will begin a six-day road tour of six cities. An old-fashioned bus and truck tour, it will visit New York, Boston, Rochester, Toronto, Pittsburgh, and Washington, D.C.

At 108 years, the Princeton Triangle Club is the oldest collegiate touring musical comedy troupe in the nation, as well as the only college group that creates an original musical each year and then performs it on tour. In 1930, Triangle built McCarter Theatre.

Among Triangle's most famous alums are F. Scott Fitzgerald, Booth Tarkington, Jimmy Stewart, Jose Ferrer, Brooke Shields, and Joshua Logan.

Tickets for the Triangle show are $22, $20, $19, and $17; students $7.50. For tickets, call McCarter at 683-8000.

"The Nutcracker" To Open McCarter's Holiday Season

The American Repertory Ballet will begin its 35th season of performing The Nutcracker at the McCarter on Friday, November 27, at 1, followed by a second performance at 4:30. Performances will also take place at 1 and 4:30 on Saturday, November 28.

Additional performances are scheduled December 30 at 7, December 31 at 1, January 2 at 1 and 4:30, and January 3 at 1 and 4:30.

Tchaikovsky's musical score will be performed for the fifth consecutive year by the American Repertory Ballet Orchestra.

More than 150 students from Princeton Ballet School participate in The Nutcracker each year. In addition, 40 volunteers, many of them parents of the student-dancers, work behind the scenes.

On Sunday, November 29, a special brunch will be held at McCarter Theatre beginning at 11 a.m. Mingling with the guests will be some very familiar characters from the ballet. A backstage tour will follow.

Guests will then attend a 1 p.m. performance of the ballet. The brunch is being catered by Main Street.

Group sales and tickets to the brunch may be obtained by calling (732) 249-1254.

$130,000 Is Raised By McCarter Benefit

The McCarter Theatre Annual Gala Benefit was held on November 14, and featured the Princeton-born, multi-platinum recording artist Mary Chapin Carpenter.

The 1998 Annual Gala was successful in raising more than $130,000 towards the theater's general operating expenses. Carol Beske of ACT Engineers, Inc. and Jim Van Arsdale of Summit Bank served as event co-chairs.

More than 620 corporate and individual patrons attended the gala event, enjoying cocktails and dinner at various sites throughout McCarter Theatre and on its grounds.

Aetna/US Healthcare, the underwriting sponsor for the fourth consecutive year, was joined by 27 other companies in supporting the benefit. In addition to the corporate support, 260 individual patrons participated in this year's gala.

MUSIC REVIEW

Members of Concert Royal Perform Masterfully In Solo Roles of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos

Anyone who has ever sent a manuscript to a publisher and dreamed about where an acceptance might lead will sympathize with the case of a 36-year-old composer named J. S. Bach. Stuck in backwater Anhalt-Cothen, bursting with musical inspiration, and hoping for a better appointment, he gets an idea. He will compose six concertos, write a dedication to the Elector of Brandenburg in the most ingratiating French he can muster, mail the manuscript to Berlin, and then wait for a reply that may change his life.

We know now that nothing came of Bach's attempt — nothing, of course, except six miraculous works of music that survive intact because someone at the Brandenburg court filed Bach's package in the library after scant consideration. But what if, instead of being filed away, the music arrived on a day when the court musicians had nothing to do? What if they thought it might be fun to read through the music of this obscure organist who had the presumption to think he had what it took to lead the musical life of an important court?

What those musicians gathered around the harpsichord would have tried to play in 1721 was performed Sunday afternoon at Richardson Auditorium by the Concert Royal — that is, all six of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos. Of course, the Concert Royal, led by James Richman, had advantages over those Brandenburg musicians: not just time to practice, electric lights, and nicely printed parts, but also a deep appreciation for the composer's mastery. Sunday's performance, far from being too much of a good thing, highlighted the beauty, intricacy, and variety of the six works that Bach hoped would be his ticket to fame and fortune.

Back in 1721, the harpsichordist might have been the first to leaf through Bach's score, spotting quickly the solo work for his instrument in Concerto No. 5. His initial attempt at the brilliant first-movement cadenza would have been awkward and finger-tangling. Not so James Richman's performance on Sunday. Even as he raced up and down the dazzling runs, Mr. Richman rendered the music smooth, nuanced, and full of dramatic contrasts.

Would the string players in Brandenburg have appreciated the complex contrapuntal interplay of string parts in so many of the movements? Would the lead violist's sense of rhythm and phrasing have been as impeccable as that of David Miller on Sunday? Mr. Miller anchored the texture of Concerto No. 3, third movement, at key moments and led the intricate, luminous solo work of the concertino in Concerto No. 6.

As the wax dripped from the candles and the evening wore on in the drafty music hall, were the musicians astonished when they discovered that Bach demanded virtuosic solo work from not just the violin, but also the oboe, recorder, flute, viola, violino piccolo, and of all things, the high F trumpet? "What does he think this is, Vienna?"

Masterful Performances

On Sunday, the members of the Concert Royal performed masterfully in the numerous solo roles. Stephen Hammer's oboe passages were not just accurate, but charming; John Thiessen electrified the auditorium with his flashy trumpeting; and Ms. Roberts carried many of the movements with her impeccable, if not transporting, violin playing.

Sunday's concert had its small imperfections. Throughout the centuries, horn players have been prone to smudging notes in difficult fast passages, and Sunday was no exception to history in Concerto No. 1. Perhaps Bach would have expected that the horn players in Berlin could get through these passages unscathed.

After reading through all six concertos, at the end of a long evening, what would the musicians of Brandenburg have thought of this Herr Bach and his music? One would like to think that if they produced a performance anywhere close to Sunday's, music history would have been changed forever. But more likely, they would have scratched their heads, mumbled about the strange complexity of the music, made excuses for missing their notes, and before blowing out the candles, tossed the manuscript into the librarian's in-box, consigning it to the files.

Keep it Local

Assumption: Many people believe that the manicured lawns of Princeton have been spared society's ills. That the problems we read about in the paper are "not in my backyard."

Reality: Families in Princeton struggle too. The Princeton Family YMCA has provided needed assistance to families in our community for 90 years. We have provided scholarships for child care, day camp, youth sports, after school and teen programs. Programs that teach lifelong skills, emphasize character development and build friendships.

Now, more than ever we need your help. Without it we must turn away hundreds of local children who have counted on us for assistance in the past. Imagine trying to explain to Michael why he will be left out.

Here's what you can do. If your employer solicits for the United Way, we encourage you to "Donor Designate" the Princeton Family YMCA. Otherwise, we urge you to make a donation to help the most needy that live right here in our community.

The need doesn't change when the address does. Children and families in our community need support too.

Please help us keep it local for 90 more years.

IT MUST HAVE BEEN QUITE AN EVENT: This photograph, from The Rose Collection exhibition at the Historical Society of Princeton, may be the most puzzling of all those awaiting identification. Was there really a concession selling cigars? Anyone who can provide information on this photograph should write to the Historical Society of Princeton, 158 Nassau Street, Princeton 08542 and refer to photo number 99.

Architecture Images In Rose Collection Are Focus of Lecture

On Thursday, November 19, Susanne C. Hand of Kinsey & Hand, a planning and historic preservation firm in Princeton, will lecture on the architectural legacy left by Princeton's Rose family of photographers.

Images representing Princeton residences and businesses, as well as Princeton University and Princeton Theological Seminary will be discussed, and the documentary evidence they provide presented.

The lecture accompanies the Historical Society of Princeton's current exhibition, "Practical Photographers: The Rose Family Studio." The Rose Studio operated from the 1870s to the 1950s.

During nearly eight decades of photographing, three generations of the family fortuitously chronicled the physical and social changes which occurred in the town. The lecture will draw upon highlights of this remarkable collection.

Ms. Hand is currently Chair of Princeton Borough's Historic Preservation Review Committee and President of Preservation New Jersey. She has 20 years of experience in researching and teaching Princeton architecture and practicing historic preservation.

She is the author of a book on New Jersey architecture published by the New Jersey Historical Commission (1995). Most recently she contributed an article entitled "Moved Buildings in Princeton" to the upcoming issue of the Society's journal, Princeton History.

This lecture is free and open to the public. It begins at 8 in Room 104 of the Computer Sciences Building at 35 Olden Street, Princeton University.

Refreshments will be served. Parking for the lecture is available in the lot adjacent to the Computer Sciences Building.

The Rose exhibition is located at Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street, and is open free of charge. Museum hours are Tuesdays through Sundays from noon to 4 pm. Call 921-6748 for information.

Clubs & Organizations

A public lecture sponsored by the Washington Crossing Audubon Society, "A Tour of Turkey from Top to Bottom," will take place on Monday, November 23, at 8, in Stainton Hall on the Pennington School campus. The school is located on Delaware Avenue between Route 31 and Main Street, Pennington.

Enjoy a tour through Turkey with Jean Bickal, an avid birder, bird bander, and photographer. Ms. Bickal has toured both northeastern and southeastern Turkey in two separate trips recently, and will share her experiences with the natural history and wildlife of this ancient country.

The program will be held in Stainton Hall. Refreshments will be served at 7:30; with the formal program to begin at 8.

Support Sources

The Dean Ornish Support Group will hold a meeting on Monday, November 23, at 6:30, at the Princeton Public Library, 65 Witherspoon Street, in the upstairs meeting room.

The meeting will be devoted to meditation and yoga. Wear loose comfortable clothes, and bring a blanket or soft surface on which to sit and stretch.

Meetings are open to anyone interested in preventing and/or reversing heart disease, as well as in adopting a healthy life-style.

For more information, call Henry Powsner at 924-5891, or Arlene Hauser at (908) 359-2701.

Dr. Michael Isnardi of Sarnoff Labs will describe the new HDTV (high definition/digital TV) system at the next meeting of 55 PLUS, on Thursday, November 19, at the Princeton Jewish Center, 435 Nassau Street, at 10.

Dr. Isnardi, who holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and who received his doctorate from its Media Lab, will describe the differences between HDTV and the television reception most people receive.

He will also address efforts now under way to reduce the price of the new sets down to a level affordable for the general public.

55 PLUS is a non-sectarian group that promotes social contacts and friendships among men who are either retired or who have flexible working hours. It is open to all men in the community; women are also welcome to attend its meetings.

Princeton Area Tough-Love will hold a workshop on Saturday, November 21, at the Church of the Nazarene, Federal City Road and Bull Run Road, Ewing. The program will last from 9 until 4:30.

ToughLove teaches a method that parents and professionals who are dealing with problem children and problem situations may use to effect change. Workshop participants will learn the basics of the ToughLove philosophy, which maintains a loving approach, while encouraging appropriate behavior.

The workshop fee will be $45 per person, or $60 per parenting couple. Early registration is desirable, as workshop space is limited.

For information, about the ToughLove workshop and the ToughLove program, call 497-9667, or e-mail Linda Fahmie-Arnold, at lfahmie@aol.com.

The Princeton area group also meets every Monday evening at 7:30, at the First Church of the Nazarene, 100 Bull Run Road, Hopewell Township. Meetings are open to all interested parents.

Citrus Sale Proceeds Will Benefit AFS

The Princeton Chapter of American Field Service (AFS) will sell Florida oranges and ruby red grapefruit for the holidays this year to raise funds for the chapter's scholarship fund. Oranges are $12 per carton; the grapefruit cost $13.

Checks must be mailed by November 25 to Robert A. Sicora, 7 Branchwood Court, Lawrenceville 08648. The fruit may be picked up at the back of Princeton High School on Thursday, December 10, between 5 and 8; on December 11 between 3 and 8; or on December 12 between 9 and 12.

Those looking for ways to brighten and energize the week might try Saturday Night Chanting at the Princeton Center for Yoga & Health (PCYH) on November 21, from 8 to 10 p.m. Discover one of the best-kept secrets of the Indian yogic tradition, kirtan chanting.

The program will feature artist-in-residence Suzin Green, with PCYH resident musicians Denise Amrich, percussion; Dan Johnson, tablas; and Stephen Witte, didgeridoo and tamboura. Beginners are welcome.

The Center is located in the Montgomery Office Commons, Route 206 just south of Princeton Airport. For information, call 924-PCYH.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton First Aid & Rescue Squad will hold its regular monthly meeting on November 23, at 7:30, at the Squad building on Harrison Street.

A Christmas party will be held at the next meeting, December 7, which will take place at Good Time Charley's, Kingston, at 6. New officers will be installed at that time.

Private Showing Of Gaudnek Work Opens in Skillman

A private exhibition of paintings by Czech-American artist Walter Gaudnek opened on November 7, at the home of Nicholas and Susan Procaccini, Skillman. It will be open to the public, by appointment only, after December 1.

Entitled, "Gaudnek-Picasso-Matisse, a Collaboration," the exhibition features vividly-colored, improvisational oil paintings, based on motifs from the best-known works of 20th-century masters Pablo Picasso and Henri Matisse.

Works in the exhibition were selected by art critic and Princeton University emeritus professor Sam Hunter. Mr. Hunter also wrote the exhibition catalogue.

ART

The artist was born in 1931, in Fleyth, Czechoslovakia, an area occupied by the Germans during World War II. His father was a victim of the Nazis. Mr. Gaudnek managed to complete his early art training in Munich; then he emigrated to the U.S.

He earned an advanced degree at the University of California, Los Angeles in 1957; in 1968, he received a doctorate in art education from New York University.

Mr. Gaudnek established a studio in New York, and was soon exhibiting at several avant-garde galleries. He was associated with the American Pop Art movement of the 1960's.

Since 1970, he has been living in Florida, while maintaining a summer studio near Munich. He holds a distinguished university professorship in art at the University of Central Florida, Orlando.

Mr. Gaudnek's work has been shown throughout the world; and his work is in number of museums, including the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Individuals interested in viewing Mr. Gaudnek's work are invited to call the Procaccinis, after December 1, at 466-5324.

Exhibits

An exhibition of paintings by Trenton artist Marguerite Doernbach will open at the Skidmore Art Consultants Gallery, 1 Airport Way (across from Princeton Airport in the same building as Carnegie Bank), on Sunday, November 22. There will be a champagne reception from 2 to 4:30 on opening day.

Ms. Doernbach, a story teller as well as an artist, has titled the exhibition of 50 small paintings, "The Biography of a Woman." During the reception, she will tell some of the stories that inspired the paintings.

A portion of the proceeds from any sale will be donated to the Passage Theatre Company.

The exhibition will remain through December 31. Gallery Hours are Thursday and Friday, from 1 to 5, or by appointment. For information, call 924-1875.

Two multi-media exhibits — "Air, Earth, and Water" and "A Movable Feast" — will be at the Montgomery Cultural Center, 124 Montgomery Road, Skillman, through the month of November.

The first exhibit is in the upstairs gallery at the center, which is known as the 1860 House. The artists are Elizabeth Roedell, Leyla Spencer, and Gloria Wiernik.

The second exhibit is "A Movable Feast" with four New Jersey artists, Cornelia D. Baker, Sandra J. Frech, Ludlow Smethurst, and Nancy Egal Nikkal.

Gallery hours for both shows are Tuesdays through Fridays, from 10 to 3; and Saturdays, from 11 to 3. For more information, call 921-3272.

Oil paintings by Princeton resident Eva Short, M.D., will be exhibited at the Bernstein Gallery in the Woodrow Wilson School's Robertson Hall from November 24 through December 31. A reception will take place on Sunday, December 6, from 3:30 to 6.

The artist describes her style as "light-hearted and primitive." The exhibit, entitled "From Adam to Ezekiel," includes illustrations of many familiar old Testament stories.

Dr. Short grew up in Jerusalem, in the former Palestine, the setting that inspires much of her work. She began painting after she retired from her Princeton-area psychiatric practice; and her first exhibit took place in 1995, when she was 80.

The gallery — at Washington Road and Prospect Avenue — is open seven days a week, from 9 to 5, except holidays.

The photographs of Edison artist J.J. Raia will be on display at Johnson & Johnson's World Headquarters Gallery in New Brunswick from November 19 through December 21, as part of the company's ongoing New Jersey Artist series.

The exhibition is entitled "Quiet Corners of New Jersey," and Mr. Raia says his main goal is to convey a sense of nature, untouched by humanity. "In the New Jersey of 1,000 years ago, a squirrel could travel across the treetops from one end of the state to the other without touching the ground," he points out.

"The primeval rivers, marshlands and oceans were clean and the skies were clear," he adds. "It was an unblemished landscape, which is the spirit that I try to capture on film."

Mr. Raia never received any formal training in the arts or in photography. He has, however, shown his work in both solo and group exhibitions throughout the state. His work has been published in New Jersey Outdoors magazine; and he has been the only photographer represented on Scenic New Jersey Calendars since 1966.

The gallery is open by appointment only. For information, call 732-524-3698.

The Rider University Art Gallery through Sunday, December 6.

Jeff Epstein, a native of Lawrence Township, will exhibit selected paintings at

Mr. Epstein will show paintings featuring the Rider campus and other parts of Mercer County in an exhibit entitled "Rider and Other Places."

The artist, who currently lives in Brooklyn, has an affinity for painting suburban landscape scenes and other objects at night. He uses broad, fluid brush strokes, which make his paintings seem very loose and spontaneous. They are actually well-structured and organized and often focus on sections rather than an entire object or scene.

Mr. Epstein holds a B.A. degree in art from Moravian College, and an M.F.A. degree in painting from Brooklyn College. He has also studied at Artworks, and with Rudy Ackerman in Florence, Italy.

Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday, 2 to 8, and Friday through Sunday, 2 to 5. For information, call gallery director Harry Naar, at 895-5588, or the university's department of fine arts at 896-5168.

YOU CAN FIND what you need in TOWN TOPICS.

BIBLICAL VISIONS: Dr. Eva Short, the Princeton psychiatrist who took up art after retirement from a long medical career, stands beside "Vision of Ezekiel," one of her oil paintings that will be exhibited in a one-woman show at the Woodrow Wilson School's Bernstein Gallery, November 24 through December 31.

31-28 Loss to Yale Is Season in Microcosm For Tiger Team Killing Itself With Mistakes

Years from now, when the current seniors on the Princeton football team look back at the 1998 season, they will remember a season of missed opportunities, heartbreaking losses and vanquished dreams. And, no doubt, they will remember Saturday's loss to Yale.

The game wasn't remarkable for its seven interceptions, 17 penalties and bevy of wild scoring plays, though those certainly kept the players and fans interested. And it didn't stand out because Princeton finally eliminated itself from Ivy League championship contention.

No, the Princeton seniors will remember their 31-28 loss Saturday at the Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn. for a different reason. They will remember it because it was a microcosm of the entire season — a season of pain, frustration and, in the end, disappointment.

The Tigers (4-5 overall, 3-3 Ivy League) fought like warriors, made stellar plays and put themselves in a position to emerge victorious. But they could not overcome mistakes on several key plays, and eventually had only themselves to blame for a game that didn't go their way.

"It's beyond frustration for us," head coach Steve Tosches said. "It's a sick feeling right now because we could be a good football team, but yet we cause too many of our own problems. That's been the story of our season."

"We'll go back at the end of the year and go through these films," he continued, "and it's just one or two plays in every single ballgame that's kept us from having a better record."

Those Killer Passes

Against Harvard October 24, that key play was a halfback touchdown pass in the fourth quarter. Versus Penn November 7, it was any of three touchdowns scored by the Quakers in the first five minutes of the game. And Saturday, the defining play was a 76-yard touchdown pass from Yale quarterback Joe Walland to wide receiver Jake Fuller. Take away those few plays and Princeton could be sitting atop the Ivy League with an unblemished 6-0 record. But as the Tigers' seniors are well aware, there's no going back.

"On the field, you realize that this is your last trip to the Yale Bowl, your last trip as a football player, and you have one game left," senior linebacker Jim Salters said after Saturday's game. "It hit me. It hit me hard."

Princeton's defeat, coupled with Penn's 41-10 victory over Harvard, puts the Tigers out of the race for the Ivy championship. The Quakers (7-2, 5-1) can win the title outright with a victory at Cornell next week, and even a loss will garner them at least a share of the crown with Brown (6-3, 4-2) or Yale (5-4, 4-2).

The Elis used two interception-return touchdowns in the first half to stake themselves to a 17-0 lead. But by the time the fourth quarter rolled around, Princeton had closed the gap to 24-14, and the Tigers opened the fourth quarter by putting together one of their most impressive drives of the season, a 14-play, 83-yard jaunt that commenced with a four-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback John Burnham to senior wide receiver Ray Canole. With the deficit trimmed to three points, the Princeton defense, which has kept the Tigers in so

Princeton* over Dartmouth. Tigers have the hope of at least finishing at .500 mark; Big Green doesn't even have that. But this could be close.

Brown over Columbia*. Bruins still hoping Penn will stumble and they'll get to share the league championship.

Penn over Cornell*. Big Red not good enough to pull off an upset against a Quaker team that has come on strong since Brown loss.

Yale over Harvard*. "The Game" is always something of a toss-up. We'll go with Elis who have won two straight versus Crimson who have lost last two.

Last Week: 4-0, Overall 34-14
*Home Team

Extra Points: The six interceptions thrown by John Burnham is not a Princeton record. His total fell one short of that posted by David W. Allerdice, Jr. in 1939 in a 20-7 loss to Cornell ... Brown's win against Dartmouth come with five seconds left. It has won two other games, Penn and Lafayette, in the final minute, and lost to Yale that way ... The season isn't over yet, but the Bruins have already retired senior wide receiver Sean Morey's number, doing it in a pregame ceremony last Saturday before their final home contest. It's near a half century since Dick Kazmaier graduated from Princeton, and although no one has worn No. 42 since, his number has never been officially retired. Maybe it's time to do so.

Tiger Football

many games this season, came up big once again.

On third down and 13 from the Yale 25-yard line, senior defensive back Craig Foote stepped in front of a pass thrown by Walland and ran the ball untouched up the right sideline for a dramatic touchdown.

"Our linebacker had great coverage on the receiver in the flat," Foote said. "Their quarterback tried to put the ball in a place where only the receiver could catch it or it would be incomplete, but by the design of our coverage, I was sitting right behind the receiver. From then on, it was just a matter of catching the ball."

Joy Was Genuine, But Brief

After the touchdown, the Princeton fans erupted and Foote was mauled by his teammates as the Tigers had finally erased the Eli lead and taken one of their own after 52 minutes of play. But unfortunately for Princeton, it took Yale a lot less time to overcome its deficit — 21 seconds, to be exact.

The Elis had consistently run the ball out of a particular formation, hoping to set up the Tigers for a long pass out of the same formation. On Yale's first play from scrimmage after Foote's interception, Yale coach Jack Siedlecki decided the time was right, and sent Fuller on a deep route.

Princeton junior cornerback Gerry Giurato, playing man coverage on Fuller, bumped into the Eli and stumbled, allowing Fuller to gain a step on him. The extra step was all Fuller needed, as he hauled in a pass from Walland for a 76-yard touchdown, Yale's longest pass reception of the season.

The pass was the "spear in the heart" that Tosches talked about afterwards, the amazing play that the Tigers' opponents always seem to make when it counts. While Foote's

Route Has Been Tortuous, But Tiger Football Still Can Accomplish All That Was Expected

And then there was one.

One game left for a Princeton football team about to wrap up a season-long struggle for respectability. The pre-season expectations here were for the Tigers to win half their games, and that opportunity is within reach. Once they dreamed of an Ivy title, but that goal now is more prosaic: beat Dartmouth this Saturday in Princeton Stadium (kickoff 1p.m.), finish 5-5 and avoid the losers' label.

That label would be the final insult to an average bunch of guys who found a new way to experience a gut-wrenching defeat every other time they took the field this fall. They lost twice in overtime on consecutive Saturdays to Lehigh and Fordham. They took a 10-0 lead against Harvard and ended up losing by a point. They self-destructed against Penn in the first five minutes. But none of that beats the goings-on in the Bowl last Saturday against Yale, a 31-28 victor.

Falling behind 17-0 in the first half, when the Elis returned two interceptions for touchdowns, the Tigers rallied to cut the deficit to 17-14 by the intermission. When the offense sputtered in the third, they let the Bulldogs take a 10-point, 24-14 lead into the fourth quarter, leaving only their most ardent supporters thinking they still had a chance.

Miraculously, the Orange and Black rallied for two touchdowns in 83 seconds midway through the final stanza to take a 28-24 lead. Hold on for the final eight minutes or so, and Old Nassau would still have a long shot at sharing the title, and an excellent chance at a winning season. There was a God after all.

But He must have been too pre-occupied answering the prayers of Tennessee fans (the Volunteers beat Arkansas 28-24 after recovering an unlikely fumble and scoring in the final minute) to be able to keep track of the final minutes in New Haven. In need of divine intervention all season long, a defenseless Princeton secondary gave up a 76-yard touchdown pass on Yale's first play from scrimmage.

What might have been, suddenly wasn't. And to underscore the overall futility of the afternoon, quarterback John Burnham threw interceptions number five and six just trying to bring the Tigers into field goal range for Alex Sierk. The league's best field goal kicker never got a chance all afternoon.

If there is good news to be told after all this, it is that the weakest Dartmouth team of this decade is coming to town this Saturday for the season's finale. Riding a four-game losing streak, the Big Green is an uncharacteristic 2-7 overall, and has won just once in the league, a 22-19 win over Yale. Its only other triumph came in overtime against Lafayette.

Graduation decimated last year's 8-2 team, and coach John Lyons did not have much in the way of talent to fill the holes. He has a senior quarterback, Mike Coffey, who is much like Burnham: getting plenty of on-the-job training in his first year as a starter and making plenty of mistakes along the way.

Junior Reginald Belhomme is the leading ground gainer, but he is averaging just 46 yards per game. The Dartmouth defense is last in the league in yards allowed per game, giving up an average of close to 390.

Princeton owns just one victory over the Big Green in this decade, a 20-13 triumph in 1994. It did manage a memorable 10-10 tie in Hanover in 1995 that gave the Tigers an outright Ivy title with an 8-1-1 mark. Some of the losses have been memorable also, like last year's 12-9 defeat in overtime in the snow.

And during a three-year stretch from 1992 to '94, the two teams met in the final game three consecutive times with a piece of the Ivy title riding on the outcome one way or another. Each time quarterback Jay Fielder managed to negate impressive performances by Keith Elias, leading the Big Green to victory. And just two years ago the final game in Palmer Stadium saw Dartmouth complete a 10-0 season blanking Princeton, 24-0.

This game has very little on the line, which is why we'll pick the Tigers. This very average team should be able to defeat the Big Green, and close out a very average season. The score? How about 21.1 to 16.5, the average points per game Princeton has scored and the average it has allowed?

Around the league, anybody who thought a crumbling Harvard team had much chance against Penn was dreaming. And don't look for Cornell having any better luck this Saturday in Ithaca. Brown should be able to knock off Columbia and settle into the bridesmaid's role yet again.

But the Bruins may have to share that spot with a surpristng Yale team that just might be able to pull off a victory in The Game in Cambridge. What a disappointing year for Harvard. The Crimson had so much coming back, and now will be playing just like Princeton to avoid a losing season.

Is there any comfort, Princeton fans, in knowing that at least the Tigers will have played up to their full potential?

Tiger Football

touchdown was an amazing play in its own right, the only thing that matters in close games is which team strikes last. And this season, that team has rarely been Princeton.

The Tiger offense could not answer Walland's big toss, as Burnham threw the final two of his six interceptions on the day on Princeton's last two drives. Burnham's last pick came with one minute, 31 seconds left and the Tigers at midfield. The misdirected throw made Saturday's game the fourth of Princeton's five losses in which Burnham has thrown an interception on the team's last offensive play of the game.

THE BEST OF TIMES: Early in the fourth quarter, Burnham connected on a four-yard toss to wide receiver Ray Canoie for a touchdown that brought the Tigers back into the game. Craig Foote's subsequent interception put the Tigers briefly ahead. (Photo by Bill Allen/NJ SportAction)

Burnham's Burden

Burnham finished the day 19-for-35 with 249 yards and three touchdown passes, but his six interceptions, coupled with a key fumble by sophomore running back Kyle Brandt in the third quarter, erased any chance of a Tiger victory. Two of the interceptions were returned for touchdowns in the first half, and three of them came with Princeton driving in Yale territory. Interestingly, he is the first Princeton quarterback since Jason Garrett to throw for more than 200 yards on four successive Saturdays.

"It's tough for your team to win when you throw six interceptions," Burnham said. "Some of them were bouncing around and [Yale] got good breaks on them, but a lot of it was just bad balls on my part."

The Tigers outgained the Elis on the ground and in the air, and managed 21 first downs to Yale's 14. Princeton also committed fewer penalties, had a slight advantage in time of possession and converted a healthy 46 percent of its third downs. But in the end, no amount of impressive statistics could make up for the seven turnovers.

The celebration after Foote's touchdown was not the only one to get cut short. Seventeen combined penalties — 10 on the Elis and seven on the Tigers — made for a wild game in which two Princeton touchdowns and a Yale interception were called back by yellow flags.

But the Tigers couldn't blame the officiating for their loss. They could only look to their own mistakes and wonder what might have happened Saturday — and, indeed, in 1998 — if one or two plays had turned out differently. Saturday's game was symbolic, and it hurt like all the rest of Princeton's losses.

"I know some guys on this team who have put their whole lives into [football] for the last eight, nine years of their lives," Salters said. "And they deserve better than this. I feel like it wasn't supposed to work out this way. That's what hurts the most right now, that with one game left in my career, here we sit 4-5."

No, Salters won't soon forget the pain and frustration of his senior season. And he most certainly won't forget a loss to Yale that could have — should have — turned out differently.

GOTCHA! A Red Bank defender caught Alonzo Green on this play Friday. But Green would later tie the game with a fourth quarter touchdown reception.

PHS Football Squad Beats Red Bank In Friday OT Thriller

The game meant as much in the high school playoff picture as an Eagles/Redskins contest would in the NFC East.

But you would never have known that from the effort and emotion PHS and Red Bank (RB) put into their Friday contest — a game the Tigers added to their schedule in lieu of a playoff spot.

"We told our kids all week that this would be their playoff game, their Super Bowl, no matter what the records were," a beaming PHS coach Dave Dudeck said following his team's 27-26 overtime win.

Princeton (2-7) beat someone other than McCorristin for the first time since 1995, when visiting RB (0-9) failed to convert a two-point PAT after coming within one in the extra period.

Mattay Smith scored his second touchdown of the afternoon to put his team up six on its second overtime possession and freshman John Trepasso kicked what soon became the game-winning point-after.

RB had one last chance and almost made the most of it. Kris Parker bulldozed his way into the end zone to narrow PHS's lead to one.

The Buccaneers went for the win and appeared to get it when Parker caught a pass near the right edge of the end zone. But the referee, who was bowled over on the play, ruled Parker out of bounds.

"It was a close call. But I'll take it," Dudeck said. "I'm not about to kick a gift horse in the mouth."

RB won the coin toss and elected to kick off to PHS to start overtime. While their decision gave them an apparent advantage (since PHS would have to score, then stop its opponent in order to win), Dudeck was happy to receive.

"We wanted to go first," he said. "I felt our offense was ahead of our defense at that point."

Dudeck's feeling notwithstanding, his defense made the first big play of the extra period, forcing and recovering a fumble on Red Bank's first play after it had stopped PHS's initial overtime drive.

The two teams traded leads all afternoon. Harlem Rhodes threw to Alonzo Green for 46 yards and a game tying touchdown with 9:07 left in the fourth. John Trepasso's extra point attempt was blocked, which left the score knotted at 20, where it would remain for the rest of regulation.

Rhodes threw a three-yard pass to Jesse Carter to get the Tigers on the board in the first period. Smith scored their second touchdown on a four-yard run in the second. Trepasso converted three-of-four extra point attempts. Parker rushed for 149 yards and three touchdowns in a valiant losing effort.

"It was intense," Smith said of his first overtime experience. "I felt like I was in college. After I scored I was trying to tell the team not to get too happy yet; we didn't win it yet."

"Not to slight the seniors, but our young kids did a great job today," Dudeck said. "At one point we had 10 underclassmen out there on defense. I'm looking forward to working with them next year."

Dudeck also cited his coaching staff of Bob Vivens, Amman Barksdale John Law and Todd Donaldson, saying: "Those guys have been going over film and working really hard with the kids."

Expect the Unexpected From Tiger Hockey, After Its Sweep Of St. Lawrence, Clarkson

NICE WORK, NICK: Goalie Nick Rankin was unbeatable last Friday against St. Lawrence.

Piece of cake, right, Princeton hockey fans?

After two simply awful performances against New Brunswick and Boston University to start the season, the Tigers (2-0 ECAC, 2-1 overall) head off to northern New York to face St. Lawrence and Clarkson in the first ECAC action of the season. Do they lose two more, do they struggle for a split? Of course not, they SWEEP!

Goalie Nick Rankin, who saw a grand total of 20 minutes of playing time last season, gets his first start since 1996, and throws his first collegiate shutout at St. Lawrence, stopping all 28 shots in a 2-0 triumph. The Orange and Black moves on to Clarkson, where it wins once every 10 years or so. In this decade alone Old Nassau has been outscored, 50-12, in Potsdam.

After his stellar showing Friday night is Rankin back in the net on Saturday? Naah, coach Don Cahoon figures he'll test the mettle of freshman Dave Stathos right away, and give him his first collegiate start against the ECAC's perennially best team on its own ice. Stathos responds with 30 saves, 14 in the first period, in a 4-3 Tiger triumph. Never mind that the Tigers were outshot by a margin of more than double, 33-16.

However, it was probably no surprise that the team's leading scorer last year, Jeff Halpern, celebrated his return to action with three goals (two of them game winners) and one assist over the weekend. After his game misconduct penalty in the New Brunswick exhibition, Cahoon had benched him for the Boston University contest.

Now, Princeton returns home tied for first in the ECAC having won its opening two league games for the first time since the league was formalized in 1984. The sweep of the Saints and the Golden Knights on the road has only happened once before, in 1989, the last time the Tigers won in Potsdam.

Back to Baker Friday

This weekend Cahoon's troops will be on Baker ice for the first time since the 11-4 loss to New Brunswick on October 31. Harvard will be here Friday night for a 7 p.m. face-off, followed by Brown on Saturday at 7.

The Tigers have Harvard just where they don't want it. The 0-3 Crimson comes here having lost its first three league games. Although it owns a 134-41-8 mark against Old Nassau, it has not beaten Princeton since December 1995. Things are not calm in Cambridge — a year ago Harvard suffered through its second consecutive losing season.

Brown has been more of a thorn in Princeton's side the last few years. The two split regular season games last winter, before Princeton won the quarterfinal series in Providence, taking two of three contests.

We're not even going to hazard a guess about the outcome of this weekend's games. Tiger fans are going to have to learn to expect the unexpected from Cahoon's teams. Whatever happens during the regular season, he has his skaters in playoff form by March, and that's what matters.

Two Goals in 38 Seconds

Friday night in Canton all the scoring in the 60-minute contest came in 38 seconds during the second period. Just over a minute into the middle stanza, Halpern got things rolling by scoring his first goal. He finished off a two-one-one with Scott Bertoli at 1:11.

That rattled the Saints enough that they gave up the puck in their own end. Ethan Doyle was there to pounce on it and rifled a shot past goalie Eric Heffler for an insurance goal. The way Rankin played, no insurance was needed. He stopped 11 shots in the second and 12 more in third, including Erik Anderson's breakaway.

WELCOME BACK, JEFF: Jeff Halpern collected four points, including both game winning goals.

He also stiffed St. Lawrence on all eight of its power play opportunities. Prior to this game, Rankin had only seven career decisions, but Cahoon no doubt remembered that his first one came exactly two years ago in Appleton Arena when he beat the Saints, 4-3.

The next night Princeton wasted no time getting on the scoreboard against Clarkson, when Halpern tallied at 1:26 of the opening period, assisted by Bertoli and Benoit Morin, who has taken over Casson Masters spot on the premier line. But J.P. Acosta didn't help his team by taking two holding penalties five minutes apart later on. Clarkson cashed in both man-advantage opportunities, and led 2-1 at the intermission.

In the second, freshman Josh Roberts, who has won a spot on the second line with Syl Apps and Chris Corrinet, brought the Tigers even at 4:48, assisted by his linemates. Bertoli's holding penalty at 12:35 enabled the Golden Knights to go back on top, 3-2, at 14:12.

However, the senior right wing atoned for that misdeed less than two minutes later when he scored on a power play, assisted by Apps and Halpern. After a zero-for-five performance on the power play at St. Lawrence, the Tigers were two-for-five at Clarkson.

The game winner came early in the third with Princeton again on the power play. Halpern tallied off pass by Morin and Steve Shirreffs, and Stathos made certain the one-goal margin would stand up the rest of the way. —Jeb Stuart

Tiger Field Hockey Beats Penn St. Off to Final Four in Philadelphia

It's getting to be a habit for the Princeton field hockey team, which will play in its third consecutive Final Four tournament this weekend in Philadelphia.

The third-seeded Tigers defeated Penn State, 3-1, Sunday in the NCAA quarterfinal round at Class of 1952 Stadium, earning the right to face second-seeded Connecticut in the semifinals 7:30 Friday night in Penn's Franklin Field. Now, Tiger coach Beth Bozman would like to start a new habit, one popularized by lacrosse coach Bill Tierney: winning an NCAA title.

It won't be easy. Should the 16-2 Tigers get by UConn, a team they lost to 2-1 a month ago, they would face the winner of the other semifinal contest, which matches No. 1 Old Dominion against Virginia in the finals set for 1 pm Sunday. ODU handed the Orange and Black its only other defeat, winning here, 2-0, October 25. It also showed why it is the team to beat in this tournament, crushing North Carolina, 7-2, in the quarterfinals.

Hosting its first NCAA field hockey contest ever, Old Nassau looked pretty dominant also, roaring out to a 3-0 lead over Penn State, before goalie Meg DeJong lost her shutout with less than three minutes to play. The victory was the first ever over the Nittany Lions after 14 consecutive losses.

The first two goals came off penalty corners. On the first Kirsty Hale inbounded the ball to Alison Morris, who sent it over to Anne Marie Reich. Reich's hard shot found the back of the cage at 12:39. Nine minutes later it was Melanie Meerschwam scored off an other penalty corner started by Hale, with a pass along from Christine Hunsicker.

After the intermission, Meerschwam got by a couple of would-be defenders and crossed the ball to Hale, who slammed it into the cage for a 3-0 lead. While happy with the outcome, several players and Bozman felt the team could have capitalized on more opportunities to score.

"This is the best team we've ever had," said Bozman. "We have great players who have been there before, eight seniors who are talented and experienced. We'll play better on Friday."

And if they needed any more motivation, they Tigers will have it against Connecticut. In their 2-1 loss, two apparent goals were disallowed by the referees, and the game film later showed them both to be legal.

"I like the fact that we get Connecticut next," said Hunsicker. "That was the one loss this year that stuck with us, knowing we'd outplayed them the whole game. We'll be up for a little revenge in that one."

As Season Nears, Carmody Seeks Answers To Questions Raised by Graduation Losses

As he fielded media questions November 11, Princeton men's basketball coach Bill Carmody was still looking for answers to the dilemmas raised by the graduation of three of last year's starters.

"Its all up in the air right now, " Carmody said of his team, which opens its season at Lafayette on November 18. "I don't have a definite starting five besides Gabe Lewullis and Brian Earl."

Last year, Earl, Lewullis, Steve Goodrich, James Mastaglio and Mitch Henderson were on the court together for most of every game as the Tigers went undefeated in Ivy League play and 27-2 overall. They climbed as high as seventh in the national polls and reached the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Despite that team's success, it lacked depth. "Last year we only played six or seven guys. And the sixth and seventh guys didn't get that much time," Carmody said. Now the Tigers must fill three positions with inexperienced players, who may or may not be ready to perform at the college level.

"I think the program is in great shape and am really happy with our freshmen. If they come along quickly we're going to be pretty good. But freshmen come in with wide eyes and then get hit with an elbow in the face. We'll see how they respond to that."

Princeton landed several exciting freshmen in the off-season, such as 6-foot-9 freshman forward/center Chris Krug and freshman center Chris Young (6-foot-10).

Both Krug and Young have impressed their coach, who said: "We recruited Krug as a center but I was really impressed with his [diverse] skills over the summer. He can make shots from out on the floor. Young plays better under the basket.

"Both are quick learners and good passers. They see the court well which helps a lot. We may find two different positions for them. I like to use my five best players now matter how tall they are."

Sophomore guard C.J. Chapman appears to be the top candidate to replace Henderson in the backcourt. Last year, Chapman appeared in 23 games and averaged 2.3 points.

CAN CARMODY DO IT AGAIN? Princeton men's basketball coach Bill Carmody has never lost an Ivy league game in his two years at the helm. But three starters who he relied on during that period graduated last Spring.

Should Krug and Young take the floor together they (along with 6-foot-7 Lewullis) will give the Princeton its tallest lineup in years, which might help it get more rebounds.

If the 1997-98 Tigers had hit their college boards as poorly as they hit the backboards, they would never have gotten into Princeton. Their opponents out-rebounded them 849 to 771 on the year.

Lewullis led the team with 14.2 points-per-game last season and Earl was third with 13.1. Both can put points on the board. But Princeton's style of basketball is based on teamwork, not individual heroics. And both veterans will need support to be effective.

"We have our two best shooters back. But can we get them open? Or will they be shooting off the dribble with a hand in their face?"

Tigers Look Sharp in Exhibition

Despite its radically different lineup, Princeton looked like Princeton during its 77-55 blowout of Team Fokus in an exhibition game Friday night — that is until Ray Robins brought Tiger fans to their feet with a flying dunk late in the game.

Robins, a 6-foot-7 freshman from Paso Robles, Calif., is one of several exciting new recruits who make Princeton's future look bright.

Though it has only two starters back from last year's team, Princeton's play Friday made its present look bright too. And while a freshman provided the highlight, older players were the main story.

Seniors Brian Earl and Gabe Lewullis looked as sharp as they did last year. Earl scored 20 points in 28 minutes and shot 4-for-6 from three point range. Lewullis scored 10 points, dished six assists and had three steals in 30 minutes.

Junior Mason Rocca showed no signs of rust (a sprained ankle sidelined him for most of the pre-season). He scored ten points and snatched a game-high 15 rebounds in 31 minutes. Nate Walton, also a junior, scored nine points in 20 minutes.

"People like to talk about our younger guys. But I was really happy with our older players tonight," coach Bill Carmody said.

Highly touted Princeton freshman Chris Young did not play in Friday's exhibition because he hurt his foot in practise Thursday. X-rays were negative and he hopes to play in the Tigers' November 18 season opener at Lafayette.

Carmody wondered aloud.

This year, Lewullis and Earl will have to lead as well as score, and that is a new responsibility for them.

"We're going to rely on Brian and Gabe an awful lot, especially early on," Carmody said. "We're asking them to be more vocal. They have to help the coaching staff to get the freshmen guys to play like they play, to show the right demeanor on the court."

When asked if he felt comfortable yelling at teammates in practise the characteristically soft-spoken Earl smiled and said: "I'm not a favorite of the freshmen so far. There was no need to do it last year with an older team; but I'm willing. I'm not worried about popularity."

ROCCA RETURNS: A sprained ankle kept Mason Rocca from practicing with the Tigers for most of the pre-season. Despite the layoff, he played well in a Friday exhibition in which he scored 10 points and snatched 15 rebounds

Role as Leader

Lewullis has also embraced his role as leader. "The older guys expect to win. We've developed that feeling here the past few years and want to pass it on to the freshmen," he said.

Aside from Earl and Lewullis, Chapman and juniors Nate Walton and Mason Rocca are the most seasoned Tigers. But Walton has weak ankle ligaments that may require surgery, and Rocca sprained his ankle badly and has been unable to practise with the team, so both are questionable as the season gets under way, though each played well in a Friday exhibition against Team Fokus.

The absence of Rocca in pre-season workouts robbed the Tigers of an experienced presence on the floor. And should Walton's condition worsen, they will lose him.

"I'm not really a veteran but I try and help the new guys along," Chapman said. "By me helping them I'm helping myself because I learn the offense better. I have more confidence than I did last year. I always knew I could play, but a year of experience speaks louder than what you think you can do. "

"Its going to be tough in and out of the Ivy," Earl said. The schedule is daunting. But we go into every game thinking we can win."

Once again, Penn should be Princeton's toughest Ivy challenger. "They have a lot of guys back — a bunch of horses that are real hungry to beat us," Lewullis said of the Quakers.

"They're going to be very good," Carmody said of Princeton's biggest basketball rival. But he is not worried about Penn yet. The Tigers and Quakers do not square off until February 9.

Carmody's season opener provided him with a more pressing concern. He said of Lafayette, which reached its conference final last year: "They have a bunch of shooters and scorers. It's not an easy first game. Not if you're going to start off playing a lot of freshmen."

As he begins his third season at the helm, Carmody's 51-6 record is the second best ever by a Division I coach after two years. And he has never lost a game in his conference. The secret of his success? "I try to win each game, plain and simple," he said.

Winning the Ivy will not be simple for Princeton this year. —Albert Raboteau

RUNNING ON EMPTY: Previously undefeated PHS ran out of gas against Watchung Hills in the playoffs November 11. Demont Heard and company outshot their foes but lost 1-0 and were eliminated.

PHS Boys' Soccer Upset by Watchung In Group III Semis

Five days after it exploded for nine goals in the first round of the Central Jersey Group III playoffs, Princeton failed to score for the first time this year and and fell 1-0 to Watchung Hills in the semifinals November 11.

The third-seeded Warriors surprised their second-seeded hosts by scoring the game's first and only goal 8:38 before halftime. Lou Mancinelli gathered the ball in front of a congested Princeton net and booted it through the crowd and past Tiger goalie Noah Scovronick.

Though they were clearly outmanned, the scrappy underdogs dug in and held on for the upset. PHS controlled the ball for the majority of the game and outshot Watchung 15-5. It seemed as if the visitors' entire lineup was pinned to its half of the field for the last 40 minutes of play.

A morning rainstorm turned half of Valley Road into a swamp for the afternoon contest. This made the footing difficult for both squads and hampered the Tigers normally precise offense. Princeton's clear advantage in ball handling ability was partially nullified by the muck it had to dribble through.

The Warriors had scouted Princeton during its 9-0 thrashing of Red Bank on November 6 and were apparently impressed by the play of Estuardo Ramirez and Demont Heard.

Ramirez was double- and occasionally triple-teamed. When PHS adjusted and moved Ramirez to midfield, Heard became the marked man on the front line.

Ramirez — who finished his senior year with a team high 29 goals and his four-year varsity career with 57 — nearly overcame the Warriors' scheme to stop him. Late in the game, he found an opening and unleashed a 30-yard blast that Watchung's goalie barely managed to tip over the crossbar.

November 11 was a bad day for favorites throughout the Group III tournament. Top-seeded North Brunswick also lost, 1-0, to Ocean Township.

Despite their playoff disappointment, the now 18-1-1 Tigers can look back on a magnificent season in which they posted the best record in school history and tied the PHS mark for most wins.

—Albert Raboteau

PHS Field Hockey Team Loses at Long Branch

Cinderella got kicked out of the ball Tuesday. Fourth-seeded Long Branch ended eighth-seeded Princeton's run in the Central Jersey Group III playoffs by shutting it out 1-0 in a semifinal match.

The Tigers were inconsistent all year and finished at 10-11. But they managed to peak in both the Mercer County Tournament and the state playoffs, reaching the finals of the former and advancing well into the latter.

At first, PHS seemed poised to upset Long Branch. It did not let its favored opponent get any shots on goal in the first half, and took three of its own, but was unable to convert.

The game turned 180 degrees after halftime; PHS was outshot 9-0 over the last 30 minutes. Jackie Levy scored soon after the break to edge the Green Wave past the Tigers and into the sectional finals.

Sophie Skover kept her team in the game for the duration by making eight saves. At one point she charged out of the net to stop a breakaway.

Kim Kaczmarek shadowed Long Branch's dangerous forward Abbie Smith, took all the Tigers' free hits, and almost scored on several occasions.

Pulte Development

> "I can't believe after Weller we're still fighting about soccer fields."
> —Steve Frakt

Board, said there was concern that Griggs Farm would become the parking lot for a soccer league. "Our position would be for some open space without the soccer field, so it would be as available to groups outside Griggs Farm," he said.

"I'm saddened to hear the comment about not wanting a soccer field," said Board member Steve Frakt. "I can't believe after Weller we're still fighting about soccer fields."

Township Mayor Phyllis Marchand said there was an awareness of the lack of recreational facilities for children who are not old enough to drive, and that the playing fields had been meant to serve those children. She also said she agreed with adding a tot lot.

First-Floor Bedroom

Pulte's planner, David Minow, said the developer was responding to the Board's interest in providing a housing opportunity to seniors by placing the master bedroom downstairs in 36 of the townhouse units. Eleanor Angoff, of the Coalition for Senior Housing, asked that these units be designated for seniors.

Board member Bill Enslin asked Board Attorney Allen Porter to research if a portion of a development can be restricted in this manner.

"For us to put an artificial limit by age would limit who lived there," said Board Member Joseph O'Neill. "We are walking into a minefield by imposing on a private developer."

Ms. Marchand said she would like to see Pulte engage in an active marketing campaign to seniors.

Mr. Hall responded that it was the developer's intention to have such a program, and assured the Planning Board that a tot lot would be added to the plans. He asked that the application be continued until the Board's December 17 meeting so that the developer could finalize the proposed design. The Planning Board granted the request.

PDS Athletic Fields

The Planning Board also held a concept review of Princeton Day School's athletic facility master plan.

The school is proposing a renovation, realignment, and new construction program for its athletic facilities, a program which will take at least four years to complete. No variances appear to be required.

One major site change is relocating the existing football and practice football fields and providing 200 seats of spectator seating for the football field. Other sports fields to be improved or relocated include field hockey, boys' and girls' lacrosse, softball, and boys' and girls' soccer. Approximately six acres of trees would be removed.

"We are not expanding athletic programs or increasing enrollment," said Dave Horn, the project's architect. "There is a shortage of space for just about every sport."

Mr. Enslin asked that a traffic master plan be prepared. In addition to hiring a traffic consultant, Mr. Horn said that the school would also like to work with the neighborhood on traffic issues.

Great Road resident Robert Galick said he was concerned about the construction of two football fields side by side, the destruction of woodland habitat, and the amount of runoff.

The work would most likely begin in the spring of 2000, said PDS officials.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

THE BASICS

When you have decided on a mortgage lender, you begin the loan process by filling out a loan application. You should be fully prepared to go over your current financial situation and credit history with the loan officer.

Have a record of all of your current bank accounts, including the name and address of bank(s), type of account(s), and approximate balance(s). Be prepared to provide details about outstanding loans or credit accounts, such as student or car loans and major credit card accounts. You will also need information about your assets, such as car title, stocks and bonds, and life insurance policies. If you foresee any credit problems, discuss them with the loan officer for advice on how to keep them from interfering with approval of the mortgage. That person can usually give you a prompt opinion about your chances for obtaining a mortgage.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.

Home sweet home...
And a pretty lot, too

Warmth and charm are in true abundance in this delightful Dutch Colonial where light flows through gracefully proportioned rooms. The sun-splashed front hall opens to the front-to-back living room with fireplace; French doors on either side of it open to a heated sun room with louvered windows. The dining room opens to a well-arranged kitchen with white cabinetry, hardwood floor and door to an inviting porch overlooking an artfully landscaped large back yard. Nearby, the powder room. Upstairs, the spacious master bedroom connecting to the hall bath, and two pleasant corner bedrooms. A full basement is partially finished and has an ample storage area. A real treasure in the village of Kingston. $265,000

Monthly payments are for 30-year conventional fixed rate mortgages as detailed below. Please ask about: Lower Downpayments • Lower Monthly Payments • Other Options

For purchase prices up to $283,925, monthly mortgage payments (principal+interest) quoted in our ads are to qualified buyers, based upon a 20% downpayment and a conventional 30-year fixed rate loan at 6.25% with 3 points, A.P.R. 6.591%. As an example, a $100,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $615.72. For purchase prices from $283,926 to $625,000, the monthly payments are to qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and calculated at 6.50% with 3 points on a "Jumbo" 30-year fixed rate mortgage with an A.P.R. of 6.806%. An example of a $500,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $3,160.34. Figures herein are approximate and do not include property taxes, hazard insurance, or homeowners association dues for a condominium purchase. Interest rates quoted are as of Oct. 1, 1998, and subject to change. Not responsible for typographical errors; while information is believed accurate, we request that the payment be validated with a mortgage provider prior to purchase.

New Listing!

WOW! This 5 bedroom, 3½ bath home on a spectacular 2 acre lot in Princeton Township has features that will knock your socks off! Although it has a contemporary look on the outside, the rooms are laid out in traditional style. As a result, the traffic pattern is wonderful, with large entry foyer, extra high ceilinged living room, and gracious dining room. The huge eat-in kitchen opens to an enormous family room large enough to accommodate a projection screen TV - which it has! The other side of the kitchen opens to a 23x22 foot tiled sun room with hot tub and bar. Lush plants flourish in this room as well as on the deck, which leads to the inground pool. And as if this weren't enough, there's a beautifully finished basement, specimen plantings and a dynamite neighborhood. Offered at $1,100,000
